HERE, THE PEOPLE WILLING, Adam and Eve will find a home. That was the preliminary consensus of city officials today who were sounding public opinion on a location for Adam and Eve streets in Daly City. Henry Doelger, right, points to the spot in his Garden of Eden (sometimes known as Westlake) where Adam and Eve may settle down. Mayor Paul Green, left, says he thinks it is as good a site as any, while B. Poncetta, Doelger Inc. vice-president, looks on. (Photo by Pat Corner)

Lions Call For Return Of Adam And Eve; The Record Offers Prizes For Opinions

Endorsement by scores of residents, civic leaders and city officials today assured the return of Adam and Eve to Daly City.

At their regular meeting Wednesday, Daly City Lions were unanimous in their recommendation that the city set up an intersection for the wandering pair. The Lions passed a resolution calling on the city "to expedite a site for the dispossessed Adam and Eve streets."

"It is apparent San Francisco won't put up much of a battle to retain the two streets," Gil O'Shaughnessy, Lions president, told his fellow members. He pointed out that the Supervisors have made no move to find a new home for the streets which were bulldozed off the Bayshore Freeway recently.

Doelger Approves

Lending weight to the sincerity of the movement, Henry Doelger this week said he would supply the services of his architects and engineers to secure a suitable site for the couple. He emphasized that while there was plenty of room in Westlake to accomodate Adam and his wife, he felt it was up to the people of Daly City to choose the proper location for the intersection.

"This, after all, is a civic matter, and as a member of the greater Daly City community I believe the choice of the site must be made by the people," Doelger concluded.

Real Credit

Mayor Paul Green said he and the council have been approached by scores of residents who feel the acquisition of the intersection would be a real credit to Daly City. He asserted the council was in complete sympathy with the movement, and some official action will be taken soon.

"What started out as litle more than a joke has become a real issue," Mayor Green said. "I, for one, feel we would be passing up a real opportunity if we let Adam and Eve slip through our town."

Free Subscriptions

The Record, too, is sincere in its belief that Adam and Eve streets should be located here. We are anxious to hear what you think. During the next week The Record will give three free one year subscriptions to the readers who write the best letter on: "Why Adam and Eve Streets Should Be Located In Daly City." Send your letters to The Record, 3317 San Jose avenue.

PARK IMPROVMNT. BIDS 30 Pct. HIGH

Council Approves City Improvements

City improvements were the principal business before the regular city council meeting Monday evening.

The high cost of building materials struck home when the council opened three bids on paving Edgewood Park. All the bids were some 30 per cent higher than the estimates made by Engineer R. A. Klassen. The council took the bids under advisement. Bidders included: Lowery Paving Co. at $6,840; Faye Improvement Co. at $5,576 and Bragato Paving Co. at $5,420.

Another Case

Action was also deferred on a bid of $3,246 for water mains and appurtenances. Again, the council noted the bid was higher than expected.

Approved, however, was the K. C. Martin bid of $2,582 for improvements on the city's new pump structure at Junipero Serra Boulevard.

No protests were made to rezoning land from Skyline and Alemany to the beach. This property, part of the 400 acres recently annexed by the city, will now be commercial. The rezoning was requested by the stables in the area who long have operated under a commercial license from the county.

The council also approved the new Westlake subdivision bordering on Skyline boulevard. This included approximate 12 blocks.

Park Action

Examining the parks, the council decided to call for bids for the fencing of Frankfort and Edgewood Parks. Along this same line, Ralph Larsen & Sons were given a $23,095 progress payment on the Community Center Building; and a $3,019 progress payment was approved for the water system in Hillside Manor No. 1.

With work almost ready to begin on the widening of Knowles Street (this will give Westlake residents a direct route to Daly City) two deeds were accepted by the city.

The council also passed the following ordinances:

1. Rezoning of the Norton property.

2. Creation of a public library board. The five man board will be named later this month.

3. Adopted a health plan for city employes.

At the conclusion of the meeting Miss Mary Ann Laramie, 7-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Laramie, 57 Cavour Street, was presented with a special award for her part as queen in the annual Daly City Spring Festival.

No Local or County Students Involved In Marijuana Ring

Officials Give Jefferson High School Students Clean Bill Of Health

Are Daly City high students the victims of a marijuana ring?

The answer apperared to be completely "no" today. The clean bill of health for Jefferson High School students, and all high schools in the county, follows a week of charges, counter charges and six arrests.

It started last Wednesday night when a group of sheriff's deputies knocked over the narcotics gang at the El Rancho Grande, a South San Francisco Cafe.

Taken into custody was the supposed "Mr. Big" of the ring, Marion J. Fleck, 23, 505 Cypress avenue, South San Francisco. But Fleck was to surrender this title Tuesday evening when county officials again hit South San Francisco and arrested Pete Perez, 27, he alleged real ring leader of the group. Along with Perez came Ben Cruze Oropeza, 26, also of South City.

Small Fry

These were the big three in the weed" racket. Also taken into ustody were Ed Cota, 22; Gilbert ubera, 22, and John Perez, 24; ll noted as being relatively small y in the setup.

All have denied any connection with the narcotics racket. Preliminary hearings have been set for Friday, June 15, before Judge Robbins of South San Francisco.

Officer Speaks

Shortly after the early arrests, Inspector Paul Jensen of the sheriff's office set off the bomb shell when he noted: "probably more than 100 South San Francisco and Daly City High School students have smoked marijuana cigarettes supplied by this gang."

The loquacious officer went on to explain that the best day for peddling the dope was on Friday afternoons preceding high school dances. And as a result of the sales, Jensen concluded, several sex orgies had taken place in the Brisbane area.

Other officers noted the Wednesday evening raid climaxed a five months investigation of a ring which was supposed to have been operating for the past two years.

Meeting Called

Following Jensen's implications of Jefferson High School students, Stanford Hannah, superintendent of the high school, denied all the charges. He then called a meeting of the board of trustees.

Monday evening the board met to discuss the marijuana problem. On hand were John Cowgill, chief county probation officer; representatives of the district attorney's office; Jensen from the sheriff's office, and Sergeant Roland Petrocchi.

Out of this meeting came the following facts:

1. There were 31 (not 100) teen-agers listed as having participated in the marijuana smoking parties. None of the 31 is a resident of Daly City or a student at Jefferson High School. However, six of the boys on the list had attended the school. Four had quit to go to work, and the other two had been suspended long before the investigation.

High Rating

2. Daly City police and county probation officers said there was no real juvenile problem in this area, and both gave Jefferson High School an "excellent" moral rating.

3. As the result of a special committee to study juvenile problems in this area, Cowgill said "there is a minimum of teen-age problems here." Vice-Principal

CIGARETTE PRICE ON TRIAL MONDAY

Test Case Expected To Settle County Fight

Cigarette prices go on trial in San Mateo County next Monday, June 18.

At that time Judge Murray Draper is expected to decide on the legality of local and county merchants selling cigarettes for $1.49 a carton. This price, according to the state, is a violation of the California Unfair Practices Act.

Ricard H. Perry, deputy attorney general, has asserted that anyone selling cigarettes below $1.56 a carton is violating the state law.

Monday, Judge Draper denied an injunction requiring Lucca Market, 7470 Mission, and Hilltop Market, 6315 Mission, to sell cigarettes for more than 1.49 a carton.

In denying the preliminary injunction, Judge Draper asserted that a similar case was to go on trial Monday, and he could see no use in issuing the injunction.

Judge Draper spoke of a Redwood City merchant who will be on trial. It is expected this will be the test case in the county, and neither Lucca nor Hilltop Market will ever reach trial.

Thomas Bocci, attorney representing Lucca and Hilltop, said his clients had sold cigarettes at a cut rate merely to meet competition. He said four markets in the Daly City area, who have not been cited, also sold below $1.52 a carton.

At Last! Men Get Equal Rights, Can Ask Alimony

JUNE 14. (CNS)—Wives would be subject to payment of alimony to husbands and would be equally responsible in the support of children under a bill passed by the assembly.

The bill, sponsored by Assemblyman Albert I. Stewart, Pasadena, gives husbands the same legal rights now enjoyed by wives with the right to ask for alimony when suing for divorce.

Market Basket Stores Celebrate Second Anniversary

Two years of community service will be celebrated this week with a special anniversary sale by Market Basket at 5901 Mission and 6318 Mission respectively.

The two well known and popular stores have come to be associated with prompt, courteous service and low prices on quality merchandise.

This fine reputation is due in no small part to the experience staff of the stores and co-owners Antoine Burkhard and Bud Holmes. Both men have proven time and time again through their consistent low prices that they are serving the community as a whole, and no single group.

In appreciation for the fine support given their stores by the greater Daly City area, Burkhard and Holmes have lined up some extra special sales for the week-end. They also will be giving away a number of free bags of groceries this Saturday. Further information may be found in their ad elsewhere in The Record.

"I hope this weekend to thank all my customers and friends for the fine manner in which they have suported my stores in Daly City," Burkhard said today. "However, for those I can't thank personally let me take this opportunity to extend my appreciation for the grand and continuing welcome they have given Market Basket."

Burkhard noted that the same fine service and low prices will continue to be a part of the reputation built up by Market Basket over the past two years.

"True, we are not the largest store in Daly City, but without undue braggin, I believe we are the best in this area," Holmes said.

There are not too many people who would disagree with Holmes.

No Sentiment Here—

Thugs Take First $15 Plus $145 More

With an eye for cash and no sympathy for sentiment thieves Saturday stripped the 6630 Club, 6630 Mission Street, of the first $15 ever taken in by the management.

And while they were taking the one dollar bills, each bearing the signatures of the first customers, they also lifted $145 from the cash register.

Police report the burglary took place early Saturday morning.

The thugs entered the establishment by forcing a rear window. After a cursory glance around the back room they took a rifle and a radio. They then went to the bar where they took the 15 dollar bills pasted above the cash register, and emptied the machine.

While the robbers were stripping the club, Nick Gallager, manager, slept soundly in another room. He did not discover the loss until he awoke the next morning, police report.

Children's Summer Program To Start

swimming instruction and recreational swimming for the whole family, Monday through Saturday. In addition to the above the Recreation Department offers facilities and supervision for many other types of organized and free play activities for all ages.

For the above activities, Marchbanks Park and Lincoln Playground will be supervised seven days a week; the high school grounds six days; Crocker School, two days, and Jefferson Elementary School, three afternoons.

May we suggest that you consult our program schedules for exact times and places of all activities and supervision. Schedules were distributed this week to students of all schools. Since OLPH students were out a week early, schedules for them are available at Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church.

Schedules Available

Anyone interested in obtaining a copy of the summer recreation schedule will find them available at all playgrounds, the Daly City Library, the high school swimming pool, the high school office, or the recreation office in the City Hall.

Now Mom and Pop or Johnnie and Mary, if you want more information about our endeavor to help you have fun this summer, please contact us at the recreation office, the playgrounds, or the crafts centers.

Next week has been designated as organization week, during which we can get acquainted, and you can sign up for the activities you are interested in.

We are looking forward to having you visit us and take part in the activities.

The Federal wage-hour law bans employment of children under 16 in rooms where manufacturing or processing is carried on.

From A Corner

By Bill Katz

Dogs, whom we are firmly convinced have more inherent good sense than humans, are getting a pretty rough shuffle around town lately. Cats are having a tough time, too, but for our money this is just dandy.

It wasn't too long ago that the city council drastically cut the social activities of local hounds. Through a new law the councilmen ruled dogs off the streets, unless accompanied by master and a good stout leash. This law was sped through the council chambers to appease certain residents whose fondness for lawns far exceeds their love of animals.

Fair And Just

Following the principle of the "greatest good for the greatest number," the law is fair and just. There is no question there are more lawns, small though they may be, than travelling dogs. But if you consider the minority, and specifically the plight of "friend hound," the law is mighty inconsiderate.

This poses a dilemma, and frankly we wouldn't know which way to vote if we were on the council. Our only consideration might be that dogs don't vote . . . not yet.

All of which leads us around the dog house to our point . . . the canine is rapidly becoming as popular as "BO" and bill collectors.

Take A Count

Maybe you think we are wrong? Then count the number of canines running around. We bet you won't find more than one or two for block after block; all of which may be a credit to our local dog catcher's ability, but is a sorry commentary on man's love of animals.

With modern living, modern furniture and model children there just isn't any room for pooches. Besides, as one modern mama pointed out, "with television, no kid wants a dog." And, once more, the present high cost of living outlaws feeding scraps to the hungry dogs . . . the scraps are heated up for tomorrow's lunch.

No Room

The domesticated wolf, like large families, is rapidly becoming a victim to modern trends. Where once man had the time, the room and the inclination to pet a dog, he has now switched his affection to two by four lawns and flower gardens. The "no room" sign has been hung out for the fourlegged critters.

There doesn't seem to be much of a solution to the problem, and we treat it merely as a sociological wonder. We also suspect that within the next 100 years the dog will take his place in the scientific tomes with the dodo bird and other animals whose lack of usefulness resulted in a dwindling away into oblivion.

Cats, Bah

While we weep a silent tear for the helpmate of man, we stand up and cheer over the possibility that cats someday may pass out of our civilization. We hate cats, unequivocally and irrationally. Freud may latch on to an explanation in reference to our last name, but this is not the case. Mousers are a sly bunch who have found a free ride via their sleek coats and silent maners.

A cat reminds us of a woman whose capabilities are limited to looking beautiful and acting dumb. (On second thought, this a bum analogy as there is nothing so good as a dumb, beautiful blond.)

Oh well, rather than get mixed up with a vitriolic debate over the pros and cons concerning cats we make a motion that the city council really do everyone a favor by passing a law banning cats except on city docks where they chew on mice and in museums where they are subject matter for wonderful

June Lemon Troth To Wesley James Announced Today

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Lemon of 267 Los Olivos, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss June Lemon, to Wesley James, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. James of 1485 Clayton street, San Francisco. No date has been set as yet for the wedding which is to take place sometime next year.

Following her graduation from Jefferson High School, June 1948, Miss Lemon attended Pasadena College in Pasadena for a year and then was employed for a year and a half in a San Francisco office. She is now employed with the Daly City Record.

James, a graduate of Polytechnic High School in San Francisco, was a student for a time at the Lick and Wilmerding Schools in the same city before becoming employed there. Both young persons are native Californians, Miss Lemon having been born in Daly City and James in San Francisco.

Jefferson High School Cleared

John Mongan said that in a body of 900 students there is bound to be some problems, but considering the number, Jeff has come out very well.

At the conclusion of the meeting Hannah deplored the publicity over the matter which he asserted had resulted in "many nervous students." He said many parents were greatly distressed.

Second Meet

Following the Monday night meeting another meeting was called Wednesday morning. This was held in Redwood City, and was attended by all San Mateo County school officials. A discussion of the marijuana story followed, and the meeting concluded with this statement by officials:

"We have no evidence that any San Mateo County high school students are involved in the present marijuana case."

The officials, however, admitted that a small number of teenagers who were not in school are involved.

County School Superintendent James Tormey said his investigation had uncovered "no marijuana or narcotics use in school grounds or during school hours."

However, Tormey said he would set up a staff to prepare additional information on the dangers of narcotics, the information to be passed along to the schools.

It had taken a week, but it appeared today that the schools were generally cleared of the marijuana charge. Not so clear were officials who had let a marijuana ring function for almost two years in the heart of South San Francisco.

Thief Forgot The Keys But Got The Signs

What use can a thief have for two signs reading: "Get Key From Attendant?"

That's what Frank Rehe, manager of the Union Station, 6200 Mission Street, wants to know today. The two signs, plus four other markers for gas and lavatories, were stolen from his station Sunday morning. Rehe valued the signs at $22, although the resale value is next to nothing.

Youngster Bumps Into Car . . . Suffers Bump

Joseph Bobachi, 3½-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bobachi, 14 Lake Vista, suffered a bump on his nose after bumping into a car here last Sunday.

The youngster was treated at the Junipero Serra hospital after he allegedly ran into the side of a car driven by a Mr. O'Neil of 83 Lake Vista.

Except for the bump on his nose, and a few tears, Joseph escaped any real injury, police said.

Marijuana Story Is Finally "Smoked Out"

The circumstances under which the marijuana story broke in Daly City and San Mateo County last week seems to us a pathetic commentary on public information channels and the public in general.

Although the case is far from finished, and there were indications today that several Daly City people might be implicated, there was no question that the whole story was as warped as some marijuana smoker's greatest "fix." In retrospect of only a week, the smoke of the narcotic ring's activities had cleared to reveal most of the users as young punks who expressed distaste of authority by puffing furiously on a loaded weed. As far as any teen-ager is responsible, the marijuana customers seemed to know what they were doing. Some of the weaker ones might have been "lured" into narcotic use and "sex orgies," but the majority were making a free choice.

None of the dope binge victims were what one expects to find around a high school. Some had made a stab at education, but all dropped out of class to follow simple gang life. In fact, school authorities failed to find one of the suspects enrolled in any San Mateo County School.

As for the scope of the problem, no one would deny the seriousness of narcotics and that everything should be done to kill the threat before it reached the public; whether that public be school children, teen-agers or adults. Yet, the power of the gang to control the wills of youth through drugs was greatly exaggerated. What on Thursday had been 100 users, soon dwindled to 31, and the "sex orgies" were a few unfortunate incidents bearing no relation to school activities.

It was true enough, the newspapers and public officials had seen a chance for plenty of sensational publicity. Dope is a "good story" in itself, made even more so when teen-agers are involved. They exploited the yarn for all it was worth.

It started when one officer told reporters that some "100 kids were involved in dope addiction." The reporters dutifully passed on the information to the editors who blew it up into 100 point black headlines. Some newspapers, usually careful to check all the facts, took the story at face value. Others checked the officer's claim and withheld the supposed number of youths involved.

We are not to judge who was at fault here, for this is no place to air newspaper ethics and what is, and what is not a headline. There was no question the marijuana story was front page news, but it was a sorry treatment of a serious social problem.

But the newspapers were not completely at fault. Also to be blamed were the police who, eager to see their names in print, blew up the size of the story to where it was no longer just a run-of-the-mill narcotics yarn; but a case involving all the school children of the county.

Not to be forgotten are the general newspaper readers...the parents and public. Many of them, also, took the story at face value. Without pause for reasoning they turned the accusing finger on school officials.

It was a shocking case of the public lack of faith in its schools and, more important, in its children. To suppose that the majority of students were steady marijuana smokers is an insult to teen-agers' intelligence and morals. Parents who screamed the loudest were often displaying the same lack of stability supposedly found only in the "victims" of dope.

This isn't to "white wash" the problem. Still unanswered today are such questions as: "How could a dope ring operate in the heart of South San Francisco, only blocks from the police station?" "Who was responsible for letting the dope peddlars operate throughout the county?" "What are the checks to be made on 'dope binges,' and juvenile delinquent problems in general?"

There are problems of narcotics throughout the county and the nation. No one will deny this charge. However, in the future it is to be hoped that the reporting of those cases will be treated with more reason and common sense by the police, papers and public.

Rid Yourself of Foolish Fears

MRS. ANITA T. ANDERSON, Cotesville, Pa., has told me of a fear she carried for weeks running into months. This fear—that she had a cancerous growth on her knee—was getting her down. It not only disturbed her during the day but constant fear and worry throughout the day naturally disturbed her sleep.

Her fear was augmented by the numerous cases of cancer she read about in the newspapers and magazines, as well as by the now-and-then cases she heard about among people with whom she had some acquaintance.

Carnegie

She watched constantly the spot that was causing her uneasiness; she believed it was increasing in size and changing in color. She believed she had other symptoms that went with this dread illness. That is, she lost weight, and although there was no real pain she thought she did feel some irritation now and then in some part of her body. Could it be that the spot on her knee was only one of the symptoms of what she feared? She got to the point that when she saw an article on cancer, she hurriedly skipped it. She wouldn't go to a doctor for an examination for fear an examination would substantiate her fear, and she could take no more.

Then one day she read something in this column dealing with an experience of someone else who had a like fear. But that someone applied commonsense and decided to rout fear even if he couldn't rout a symptom. With the result that ridding himself of fear toned up his system, built up his morale, and all his dread symptoms disappeared.

All of a sudden Mrs. Anderson told herself that she was dealing in an infantile emotion. She, too, would rid herself of her fear. If she had cancer, constant thinking about it could do no good. If this awful truth were verified, she could at least make the most of what life she was to have left. "All of us die sometime," she whispered to herself. "Does it matter much from what ailment?"

She then did what she had been afraid to do: she went to a doctor. The doctor looked at the spot, gave her a thorough going over, and said, "We'll get rid of this litle menace and I don't think it will return. There are no symptoms whatever of cancer."

Having learned to rid herself of this particular fear, it has been easy since to rid herself of any other fear that comes along. "Never again," she says, "will I be obsessed and harassed over something that doesn't exist. Ever hereafter I am going to use the commonsense with which my Maker endowed me."

CALIFORNIA LAST WEEK

THE GOVERNOR remained fairly close to his desk to take care of the bills sent to him in increasing numbers from the senate and assembly. Visited San Jose where he addressed the California conference of social workers. Received a courtesy call from Dr. J. G. DeBeus, minister plenipotentiary of the Netherlands government. Made a large number of minor appointments.

THE LEGISLATURE is going into its last week of operation for the 1951 session, as the gavel will fall at midnight, June 23, even if debate is halted in the middle of an important bill, for anything that transpires after midnight is unconstitutional. The budget is out, and legislators are scrambling to pick up their pet special appropriation measures before the deadline. Some legislation which was sidetracked is back in the hopper again, principally, the smog investigation bill, the measure, amended, to ban draw poker in places with more than five tables, and the bill to create a Placer-Eldorado county water and power conservation district. Both the senate and assembly have passed appropriations for child care center continuation, and it remains to be seen which bill will finally reach the governor's desk. Meanwhile, legislators are dumping scores of measures before the governor, most of them being on minor amendments.

WHEN you are laundering delicate fabrics so fragile that they won't take starch, try this: Dissolve a small quantity of sugar in the final rinse water and run the material through that to stiffen it.

Adding salt to your starch water on a windy day, helps to keep the clothes starched while the wind whips them around during the drying.

If your clothespins have a tendency to give way long before their time, treat the pins, while new, to make them last longer. Place in a basin of boiling water and washing soda for 30 minutes, rinse in cold water and let them dry in the sun before using.

Linen, which does not take well to commercial bleaches, may be bleached by rubbing with lemon juice. Let dry in the sun. Repeat, if necessary.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Tomato-Cottage Cheese Salad

(Serves 6-8)

2 envelopes plain gelatin
2 cans condensed tomato soup
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup large curd cottage cheese

Soften gelatin in ½ cup soup; set aside. Heat remaining soup then add gelatin and seasonings. Stir until dissolved. Chill until the consistency of unbeaten egg white; fold in cottage cheese. Pour into an oiled salad mold or individual molds and chill until firm. Serve greens and mayonnaise.

Fine fabrics which are difficult to dampen evenly for ironing can be wrapped in a wet towel for this purpose. Let stand in the towel at least 30 minutes before ironing to allow moisture to penetrate.

THIS WEEK IN Washington

ECONOMIC STABILIZER Eric Johnston told the house agriculture committee that if the cattlemen of the country can prove that rollbacks of cattle prices will not work, he will be the first to recommend a change in the OPS rollback order.

Admitting that economists in his office disagree as to whether these rollbacks will result in beef shortages, he asks that in the meantime the OPS order be given a fair chance to work.

Mr. Johnston points out that the threats of huge black markets which may result under beef ceiling prices have yet to become true. He points out that black markets in the old OPA days resulted because there was lack of effective control over thousands of small livestock slaughterers who paid big prices for beef and so drained off supplies that would otherwise have gone into legitimate market.

But, Mr. Johnston says, the setup is different today. In the first place OPS has placed slaughterers under a rigid system of licensing and has prohibited issuance of new licenses. Also all meats must be stamped as federally inspected making it easier to trace meats to their source. On top of this, Mr. Johnston points out that even after the scheduled roll backs, which are to take place later in the summer or fall, cattle prices will still average 125 per cent of parity, which he maintains is high enough to insure incentive for continued heavy production. It all remains to be seen.

At a time when the civil defense administration was drumming up sentiment for a nation-wide program of training and educating the American public to "become a full partner with the military" in defending the lives of the country in case of aggression, this congress slashed the civil defense administration requested appropriation from $403,000,000 to $31,750,000. Which leaves that agency sitting in Washington largely twiddling its thumbs. Said former governor Millard Caldwell of Florida, boss of CDA. "I have faith that in time—I hope that the time is not too late—the congress will recognize the fact that an informed, organized and trained public is a full copartner with the military forces. Civil defense is either necessary or it is not. Congress should make the decision quickly. It's time to stop fiddling."

And the same congressional action was taken over another important appropriation. At a time when the Crusade For Freedom, chairmaned by General Lucius Clay, was reaching fruition, when the National Committee for a Free Europe was spending huge sums of money to build radio broadcasting stations for a radio free Europe, the congress slashed the funds of the Voice of America from a requested $97,500,000 to a mere $9,533,939, which means that this important function of informing the free world will be cut to almost nothing. And all because, according to observers here, the congress is mad at Dean Acheson, secretary of state.

Congressional Quarterly an un-biased news reporting agency has compiled a record showing that dollar-a-year men are flocking back to Washington, some to work for the government without compensation, and others at a compensation up to $50 per day. There already are 450 such men from various civilian segments here serving as consultants, special assistants, advisors, industry analysts and experts of specific problems and already a congressional spot light is being beamed on their activities.

Testimony has been given before a house committee studying monopoly problems that some of these employees with the National Production Authority showed favoritism to certain large business concerns in allocation of scarce materials. Small business, too, has complained it is not getting a break on government contracts. As a result, it is likely that a pool of materials will be set up for small business, independent of any other consideration, so that these smaller manufacturers will stand a better chance in the allocation and priority process. Also defense agencies have been ordered to even make price differentials to aid small business get contracts.

NINA'S BROW contracted at the figures on the invoice. Another mistake! For three days she'd been making them. Ever since Stephen's letter had arrived, she'd been unable to concentrate on her work.

Her attempt to correct the mistake failed. Her thoughts were filled with: "I'll see him tonight!" She glanced at the clock on the wall beyond her desk. Two o'clock! Evening was an eternity away. She could see him sooner if—

She rose and hurried into the dressing room. Carefully, she adjusted her new hat.

"Eliza," she said, when she had emerged, hovering back of an elderly woman, humped over books of the ACCOUNTING AGENCY, "do you care if I take off the afternoon?"

"Might as well," Eliza reponded resignedly, not glancing up to note the hat nor the air of excitement about Nina. "Might as well. Whatever's got into you?"

Nina laughed at her; but in the corridor, waiting for the elevator her gray eyes sombered. Something unpleasant caught within her. She'd gone on with her work—work she liked—without computing time.

Was it possible? 20 years? 20 years since she'd seen Stephen!

That last time she'd seen him was etched on her momory. He'd come up before her home in Lawsonville. He'd offered her heliotropes, gathered from his aunt's garden, just as she was ready to drive away with Teddy. His brown eyes had darkened queerly—she'd remembered later — when she'd said, "Ask my mother to put them in my room, Stephen."

She'd waved carelessly, driving away into the moonlight of a June night. Though she had hoped all through high school that Stephen would be attracted to her—she'd let Teddy persuade her to elope.

Too late, she'd found his note in the heliotropes. Soon he'd left Lawsonville. He had not known, until he'd met her son in New York, that two month's later Ted's car had tangled fatally with an oak.

Now she was too see him again, after all the years!

She started. Lucile, the elevator operator, was prompting. "Going down, Mrs. Marsh?"

Getting them in motion, the girl flicked her lashes at Nina's hat. As she gazed without comment, Nina grew uncomfortable. "I—bought it for Easter," she said. "Do you think it—too gay, Lucile?"

"Oh, a—" Lucile halted the elevator. "Red contrasts with your blue suit—and—your shoes, too.—Going up. Going up?"

By the time Nina'd gone a half a block, her cheeks were hot. She took to averting her eyes from the women she met. She feared she'd read confirmation of Lucile's verdict in thei faces. "Gracious, what an outfit on her! Perky red hat. Red pumps — with high heels. Wouldn't you thing a woman her age—?

She stole a glance at her reflection in a plate glass window. Smiling faintly, she stole another. Silly—her form was still slim—her shoulders erect—her ankles trim in the red pumps.

A measure of self-assurance returned. She was opposite the "Flower-Basket," where sometimes she bought a bouquet for her small apartment. She'd get a spray of heliotrope. Stephen'd know she'd cherished the memory.

"Oh, Mrs. Sands," she said brightly to a woman, standing among flower containers, enrapt with an object in her hand, "I'd like a spray of heliotrope to wear, purple. I'm meeting the airport bus in the next block.

"Pretty near due," said Mrs. Sands, drawing nearer.. "Lo-OK." She evhibited a snapshot of an infant. "My daughter's. I'm goofy about him. You'll get it—if you're a grandmother."

"Grandmother? My son's but nineteen. If you'll please get the flowers."

Patting the flowers against Nina's jacket, Mrs. Sands remarked admiringly, "I always say heliotrope goes grand with graying hair—"

Outside, Nina's steps lagged at a busy intersection. Grandmother, Gray showing in the brown of her hair. Across, she could discern the yellow of the approaching airport bus. No, she wouldn't meet him—nor would he have dinner with him tonight! She'd send a message to his hotel. A red hat too young. Grandmother? Gray hair! She'd go back to work—back where she'd been 20 years! With a last look at the bus, she was about to turn around, when she felt her arm pressed anxiously.

"Would you mind helping me across the street, my dear?" said an old lady, pointing her cane. "To get over on the green light, I have to have a young strong arm."

SUCCESSFUL PARENTHOOD

By Mrs. CATHERINE CONRAD EDWARDS
Associate Editor, Parents' Magazine

A BUSY YOUNG MOTHER turned up late at a meeting recently and excused herlsef on the grounds that her five-year-old's offers of assistance had played hob with her schedule. "Housework never takes quite so long," she explained humorously, "as when Andy is around to help me!"

It is certainly true that the fumbling attempts of inexperienced little fingers to knead the dough, set the table, empty the waste basket, etc., often create extra chores—sometimes breakage and general havoc. But those fingers develop skill through trial-and-error, minor catastrophes pay later dividends. After all, what price a few cracked dishes or a spilled dustpan when weighed against the growing self-reliance of a child?

If you send your young daughter on an errand to the store, she may lose the money with which you have entrusted her; she may bring home the wrong groceries thereby wasting your time and trying your patience. But, give her another chance—she'll learn.

When you let her trundle the cart along the aisles of the supermarket, she may slow your progress and distract you by her questions. But chances are she's noticing things that will make her a good shopper one of these days. And, of course, she already feels tremendously important because she's pushing that cart and being of service! She's sorry for her little friend, down the street, whose mother refuses her help and says, "No, you mayn't carry those parcels. You'd only drop them! Now stop being a nuisance."

To be sure, there's more to developing self-reliance than just letting your child have a fling at an occasional task. You must be ready with endless sympathy and encouragement. You must be eternally on guard against your own impatience. Take for example the case of the little boy who passes the cakes at mother's tea party and drops them frosted side down. There's a household crisis for you! Mother took infinite pains preparing that dainty array of goodies and all that's left of her handiwork is a sticky mess on the rug. She has every right to be disappointed, but she has no right to be cross with the innocent cause of the debacle. To her little boy, the accident is sheer tragedy. See how the eager face that shone above the platter he was so proudly carrying now crumples into frightened tears. He has been found wanting!

If mother scolds every time his effort to [illegible] doesn't come off she may [illegible] a sense of failure into [illegible] memory and brand him with a feeling of incompetence. "I can't" may become his pathetic watchword when asked to accept responsibility.

But if, on the other hand, mother heriocally pulls herself together to say, "Tut, it doesn't matter. That could have happened to anyone," she has not only comforted a present hurt but is also helping lay the foundations for an independent, "try-again-better-luck - next - time" personality.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

BY KATHERINE M. HOPSON

MRS. DEBORAH BARTON sighed. She was not used to having her plans go awry, and things were not working out as she had planned. June Dryden, her niece, reputed beauty and belle of her home town, was not cooperating as she should while here on a visit.

"It's all right to play around with different men and have a good time, when none of them are very eligible; but here, where you have a chance to make a really good match with the catch of the county, you turn a cold shoulder, and make up to a nobody who isn't even attractive!" She fumed.

"Oh Aunt Debby, Fred really is attractive in a quiet way, and he's very intelligent!"

"Oh, he's smart enough; but Allen Trumbull has everything—looks, personality, wealth — and he's a war hero to boot! What more do you want?"

"I don't know. I guess I want to be in love!"

"Love—fiddlesticks! Use your brains! Look at me—I was the homeliest girl in my crowd, and I made the best match!"

June did not look impressed. Her aunt continued:

"That's the trouble with you girls with beauty. You depend on that alone to carry you through; and it doesn't always do it. I'm sorry your sister Jane couldn't come. I bet she'll come out ahead in the end, even if she is plain. Probably, she'll use her brains. Seriously, June, to-night at the dance, wear your prettiest formal, and play up to Alvin Trumbull."

"All right, I will," answered June, without enthusiasm.

Aunt Debby settled back comfortably. It was nice to be home again, after 10 years spent abroad. Her brother John's twin daughters had been eight years old, just little things, when she went away. They were both rather plain then, and June did not impress her as being as glamorous as she had been pictured; but she undoubtedly had charm that grew on one.

Aunt Debby opened her sister-in-law's letter and reread it to herself:

"I'm glad of a chance to get June away for awhile. She fancies herself in love with a boy who lives next door. Not a thing to him but his uniform. I didn't want her to visit her college roommate, because this boy is now at camp close by. It will be all right for Jane to go there, maybe she'll meet some new man who will take a fancy to her when her prettier sister isn't around. Try and interest June in somebody else while she's with you. There's nothing like competition, you know."

"Humph—I've done my best," thought Aunt Debby.

Alvin Trumbull had invited June to go to a dance at the country club that night. Her aunt watched them go with satisfaction. June really did look lovely in a scarlet evening dress which brought out the fairness of her skin, and the golden light in her blonde hair. It was luck while her niece was here, having the old Trumbull house open again. It had been closed for many years with only a caretaker, while the family lived in California. Alvin Trumbull, heir to the Trumbull fortune, had been only a baby when they left here. Now he was here with a friend for a stay in the old country home. Both had lately returned from Korea.

He certainly is taken with June, thought Aunt Debby, with satisfaction, as she settled to her book for the evening. A couple of hours later, she was surprised when the front door opened, and June and Alvin's friend, Fred Wilkins, came in. June came over and put her arms about her aunt, who asked:

"What's up? You're home early. Where's Alvin?"

"After we left here, we switched dates. I got in Fred's car, and Alvin took Betty Bruner, Fred's date to the dance. Fred and I didn't go—we drove over to Collinsville and were married—"

"Married—to that Man?" Aunt Debby glared, while visions of annulment floated through her fertile brain.

"Yes, Aunt Debby," Fred answered. "I have a confession to make—I am really Alvin Trumbull. Fred and I changed places while here. I haven't been back since I was a baby. Nobody knows me here. Fred loves society and I hate it—so I let him take my place—"

"You are Alvin—the Trumbull heir?"

He nodded.

Aunt Debby turned to her niece: "Did you know all the time?"

"No, not till this evening."

"Well, you used your brains after all!"

"No, I just fell in love! But while we're making confessions— I have one to make too. I'm not really June, but Jane, the plain one. June wanted to go where she could be near her sweetheart, and asked me to take her place here. I thought it would be fun to pose as June—the pretty one—she always overshadows me when we're together. This is the first time I've ever been anywhere aione—"

"Well, if nobody else used their brains, maybe I did," answered Aunt Debby. "I gave you a good build-up before you came, and said you were the prettiest girl in your home town. That's what really put it over!"

KATHLEEN NORRIS

Decency

SOME TIME AGO I wrote an article about decency.

Decency. Just plain old-fashioned modesty in speech, in the books we read and the clothing we wear and the jokes at which we laugh. I asked the women who read that article to write me.

They wrote me by the hundred. The letters and postcards came in tied in bundles. And they all said one thing: that America's mothers and teachers are sick of nakedness and coarseness in pictures, and radio programs, in drugstore books and shameless jokes.

Because I simply cannot answer all these messages personally, I say thank you for them here. And I ask these mothers and teachers to take up this work of protecting our young people from the contagion of vulgarity, of ugly familiarity with the most degraded aspects of criminal and sexual depravity. Take up this cause with your own children first, with your club, with the parents-teachers group, and with protests to your movies. Keep it up steadily and patiently; talk about it. If this flood of mail is any indication, every responsible woman in the world is with you.

Is It Too Late?

One woman wrote me that she did truly believe in decency, in self-control, in modesty, in purity. But, she asked, has the world any use for them today? Is it too late to start training daughters in the old-fashioned virtues of purity?

"My daughter is 17, and she is lovely, gifted and intelligent," says Harri Paget's letter. "In her younger school days she was the center of a merry, admiring group of girls. But at 15 and 16 all that dropped. The girls became boy-crazy; they began to 'go steady.' They drifted away, making dates in their early teens that we would not have been allowed to make at 20. Pamela shared none of this. I had long prepared her mind for the fact that she was not to be one of the crowd that flocked about to drugstore counters, night clubs, and sophisticated movies; her father and I saw to it that she had a normal, happy time, but we watched her amusements and her books, and above all, her associates.

"What was the result? Why, that she was regarded as a prude, and gradually dropped from all the plans of her friends. Pamela, they said, was no fun, couldn't do anything, never got away from parental apron-strings; she was actually disliked because she supposedly thought herself superior.

"What encouragement does her story offer to mothers anxious to bring up their girls in the old dignified way? Pam's week ends are empty. If she sees a movie it is with her father or myself. And, yet as I began by telling you, she is an exceptionally lovely and gifted girl. What chances would an ordinary girl have if this is the present attitude toward decency, character and self-control?"

Half the Problem

To this mother I say in answer that she has only grasped half the problem. Merely to forbid children dangerous amusements is to leave a big vacuum in their lives. That vacuum must be filled by safer occupations, and if Pamela's mother and father haven't been finding them and developing them, they are almost as much to blame as are the purveyors of the more dangerous sort.

Since childhood Pamela should have been encouraged in friendships that her parents could approve. Not all girls are wild; not all comic strips and paper-covered books are filthy; not all movies stress the immodest and sexy side of life. Most of our American families, living in apartments, in suburbs, in small country towns, have high ideals, and most mothers and fathers are in touch with enough that is going on in civic and social and church and charitable circles to introduce their children to some of life's realities.

By this time Pamela should know affectionately and intimately the children of her parents' friends; they should be at home in her house; there should be occasional informal suppers, pencil games, dancing to radio music, picnics and week end excursions right through the year. To see to this end of Pamela's life is as much an obligation on her father and mother as the care of her teeth, schooling, health. Apparently the Pagets sat back, critical and dissatisfied, and contented themselves with blanking everything out of life.

It's Vacation Time Again For Pack 36

By Mrs. E. K. Whinnen

Spring and vacation! No more school. No more den meetings. No more pack meetings. All the things that keep kids in line are over for a few months. Kids can just be kids. What a grand feeling it is, as we all remember.

At the last pack meeting, June 5th, all the dens in Pack 36 presented skits for the entertainment of each other and the parents. It was a good meeting, with a large turnout.

Skit By Den 16

Den 16 presented a skit about Mr. Jangle Nerves going to Screwball Sanitarium for a rest. The things that happened to poor Mr. Jangle Nerves in that sanitarium shouldn't happen to anyone. The poor man finally ended up completely unbalanced and had to be straight-jacketed right there on the stage. The kids enjoyed these goofy antics and so did the parents. Den Mother Irene Rosenberg wrote the skit and the kids gave it their all.

Pack 15 of the American Legue won the play-off game between the two Leagues, and had their name inscribed on the trophy for the first time, for winning the West of Twin Peaks Championship.

The National League won the all-star game, played after the League play-off game. Pack 36 is in the National League.

George Yerby was presented with a gift in recognition of his work as Assistant Coach. Baseball awards were presented to all Cubs who participated in baseball this season.

Rosenberg Retires

Since Al Rosenberg is retiring as baseball coach, after two years, the Pack is looking for another coach among the parents who will give as much time and interest to the job as Al did, and who will arouse the enthusiasm of the boys to give their best. Its a lot of work, but according to Coach Rosenberg, he has found these last two years working with the Cubs, among the most rewarding of his life.

The baseball dinner at Al and Irene Rosenberg's was a pleasant and smooth running affair, enjoyed alike by boys and parents. Enormous quantities of good spaghetti were on hand as well as French bread, ice cream and cookies, coke for the kids and coffee for the adults. All hands turned out to help make it a success and I believe one and all would say it was.

The boys who played base ball presented both Irene and Al with a gift of rememberance. Blair Forbes, known to most of us with affection as "Tobey," presented the gifts. The halting, serious speech, was so typical of Tobey who finds it hard to be serious at all, and really must concentrate, when such a job is thrust upon him.

So Cubs—happy vacation—have fun.

Open Bids For Job On Bayshore Link

JUNE 14. (CNS) — Bids for another link of the bayshore freeway in the city of San Francisco were opened this week, with Charles L. Harney, San Francisco, low bidder, asking 3,044,734.50 for the unit.

The work will consist of an overhead structure, carrying freeway traffic from a point near 17th street and San Bruno avenue, over the congested area around 10th and Potrero, coming to street level again at Bryant between 9th and 10th.

The overhead will carry traffic over eight sets of railroad tracks, as well as separate the traffic from local traffic in the warehouse district.

The entire structure will be of steel, with nearly 6,400 tons to be used in construction. Connections will be provided so that in the future, other structures may be connected to carry traffic over to the San Francisco Oakland Bay Bridges, as well as west to connect to Van Ness Ave.

In announcing the bid opening, the department of public works said:

"As the motorist drives up onto the structure at 10th and Bryant streets he will find two separated roadways carrying two lanes of traffic in each direction. as he travels south, and nears the other conecting ramps over 15th street, each lane widens out to three lanes each way. From there, the freeway reaches on to the south with three lanes in each direction."

Broadmoor, Other Unincorporated Areas Face Tax

JUNE 14. (CNS)—Action on a bill revising methods of taxation in urban areas was blocked in the assembly today when several assemblymen introduced amendments sufficient to rewrite the measure.

The amendments have delayed action on the bill probably until Monday. The measure would give county board of supervisors the power to set up urban districts demanding special services, in which taxation would be equalized with the cities.

From Freda Kraft, Baltimore: I remember the camphor bag and mole tooth I wore around my neck. The reason: Silly, of course, but to keep colds away.

From Dora Bucklin, Orleans, Neb.: I remember when the early settlers in western Nebraska held literary debates in school hours and put up more convincing arguments than some of our politicians do now.

From E. E. Meredith, Fairmont, W. Va.: Do you remember when rouge and lipstick were worn only by show people?

From Mrs. H. C. Fullerton, San Antonio, Texas: I remember when we got our first car. It was an Ohio open-top and had a fog horn you could hear for a country mile. We dressed for a ride in long linen dusters with linen cap and huge goggles. Sometimes we would find ourselves in a long lane behind a herd of cattle.

From Mrs. L. R. Irvin, Fullerton, Neb.: I remember when pails of fresh, foamy milk were strained through a cloth into crocks.

From Mrs. Edith Cory, Chipley Fla.: I remember when women wore basques with whalebones in each seam to hold them smooth and tight, and with them, long skirts and overskirts with bustles.

From Mrs. Estelle C. Laughlin Gering, Neb.: I remember when we didn't call a leg a leg or a bull a bull . . . it was a limb and he was a gentleman cow.

From Mrs. Josie Butera, Pittston, Pa.: I remember when the ice cream man with the push cart was called the "hokey-pokey." He used to ring a bell. He sold ice cream in forms of little rolls or squares wrapped in white paper for only two cents.

TALK OF THE TOWN

By DIANE DALY

Well June is bustin' out all over, with the biggest "bust" being the prognosticated earthquake—that didn't happen! Intrepid mothers in our town, with a busy week ahead, did not have time to be disturbed with such Fol-de-rol—with Fathers' Day and Commencement Week plans to be carried out.

The one cloud on the horizon that could not be ignored was the somber reflection of the marijuana merry-go-round on our fine High School. Even the most conscientious and careful parent could not help but shudder at the spectre of living death awaiting the daring and naive youngsters who in a moment of recklessness would trade, on the very threshold of life, all their promising future, for a passport down the long, torturous road of dope addiction, inevitably to the "point of no return."

Although NONE of our students were actually implicated, hearings were slated for today and with vigilance as the watchword, parents and educators, yes even students, are going to know how to meet this menace with all flags flying—This is War!

From the "Mikado" by Gilbert and Sullivan, I am reminded of the song—"Let the Punishment Fit the Crime" — and those are my sentiments when it comes to dope peddlers—the basest of all criminals. Their bloodless murders go unpunished—and it's high time we did something about it!

WAYWARD BUS:

In a lighter vein, a few excerpts from happier activities of the "Senior Sneak."

Two bus loads of carefree seniors, from Jefferson High, off for the traditional "holiday" with their destination the Hearst Ranch in Pleasanton. Riding, tennis, swimming and dancing the order of the day, to say nothing of the barbecue and hi-jinks. Sharing the Ranch with them were corresponding groups from Alameda High and San Jose Tech.

En Route . . . the ukelele accompaniment by Al Johnson to the loud and melodic tunes rendered by the enthusiastic travelers. . . An echo in every valley. . . yet. . .

The weatherman obliging with the "Sun in the Mornin' and the Moon at Night" . . . Antics around the swimming pool with Glo-suits predominating. Blonde Joan Turanjinin looking so pretty in a strapless model of robins-egg blue. . . . Frank Perry winning applause along with Mansel Roland for diving prowess. . . Barbara Baden in a becoming yellow, seeking refuge from pranksters Paul Mears and Roger Burroughs. . . Wearing a sharp beach ensemble in maroon plaid terry cloth was Dorothy Foley. . . Teachers Reese, Baciocco, Newswanger and Orlich, looking and acting like—seniors, what else?

IN THE SPOTLIGHT:

Sue Wilson's tender rendition of "Tenderly" . . . Freddy Thompson and his "INK SPOT" stooges giving with, "To Each His Own" . . . The professional Dubonnet Trio, currently appearing at the Ranch, graciously backgrounding for Christine Quickerts vocal. . .

DEER ME:

Cool of the evening riders Lynne Nottingham, with Pat McCool (senior prexy), Bob Gallagher, Carol Davies, and Jim Stanton coming across several startled deer. . . Carol's steed being promptly dubbed the "isolationist horse," bringing up the rear of the cavalcade consistently. . .

HAIL THE CONQUERING HERO

The congratulations were loud and long for popular Big Ed Cereghino, who pitched the eye-opener last Saturday at Seals Stadium, and not only struck out fifteen of thirty seven men in the nine inning contest, but also hit a homer (the only one of the night), to defeat San Francisco All Star preps and Willie Franco of Sacred Heart. Already possessor of Jeffs highest award as "player of the year," Ed won the expense-free trip to the World Series for 1951 in the fall. Although he leaves Jefferson in a few weeks, his career in baseball seems well assured, and all of his friends in Daly City will be wishing him the best.

EIGHTH GRADE GRADS:

Hostessing Eight Grade graduates of O.L.P.H. at a Breakfast last week was the Mothers Club of the Parish, with Mrs. Katherine Ricci doing Chairman duties. She was assisted by Mrs. Marion Bafestreri. The charming blue and gold decor was arranged and enhanced with floral detail by Alma Garibaldi. Father Stewart presented many awards and was the speaker.

MUSICALE:

Surprised and pleased were Vickie Shroeder and Jerome Ennis, whose parents, Mrs. Hans Shroeder and Mrs. Richard Ennis, entertained at a joint graduation party following the exercises at O.L.P.H. The affair took place at the Ennis residence.

Vickie and Jerome, students of the piano, presented very nice numbers, and Mrs. Arthur Heydon and Frank Bedford obliged with songs, to make up a pleasant musical interlude. The ample buffet, centered with arrangements of gladioli, featured amusing little "diploma sandwiches" tied with the customary narrow ribbon and all the favorites of the young people. Guests included the Al Riveras, the William Lewis', Mrs. Stephen Pardini, Richard McDonogh, Frank Bedford, Mrs. Dorothy Higgins, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Yakas, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Miller. Late arrivals were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Garibaldi, and Paul Green and Jim Kennedy.

THE PARTY LINE:

A birthday dinner last week for Fire Chief Elmer Kennedy, with the family participating. . .

GOLF GOSSIP:

Alice and Michael Kerekes, 112 East Vista, frequenting the Harding course. Alice having missed out in the Women's City Tourney, is getting a little form for the long shot Hole-In-One Tournament which is stirring up much interest. Mrs. H. Davidson, 551 Hillside, who won the Handicap Tournament at Crystal Springs course recently, will abandon the fairway for the airway when she leaves for a visit with her mother in St. Paul, Minn., soon, and will be accompanied by daughter, Lois. Carol Haas emerged with a triumphant 65 in last weeks Automobile Dealers Tourney, with Bob Sylvestri winning low gross honors in the Guest Flight. At Merced Golf Course last week Art Linhares local gendarme, scored a 35—one under par, but not quite good enough to beat Pete Markovich's 38-34 for Sweepstake honors. Warren Burl was also a runner up.

CUPID'S DIARY:

Bride-elect Lorraine Bianco, was entertained at a bridal shower recently, by her sister, Mrs. William Bradshaw, 141 East Vista Ave. The daughter of the John Bradshaws of S. F., she and her fiance Donald Miles are tentatively planning to tie the knot in Reno. Over twenty-five guests attended this lovely party, with well-wishers presenting many beautiful gifts. The buffet was centered by a betrothal cake and the decor was in spring flowers.

Middle aisle plans for Florence Hannah and John Murphy have been set for June 30th, the ceremony to take place at Grace Presbyterian Church, Reverend Harberts officiating. The afternoon ceremony will be followed by a reception in the Fellowship Hall, with ladies of the church hostessing. Florence is the daughter of the Stanford Hannahs of 118 Garden Lane, Garden Village. The bride-elect, formerly attended Jefferson High and this week will graduate from Lux College for girls. The prospective groom is the son of the P. M. Murphys of San Francisco, and is an employe of P. G. & E.

Several showers have been held for this popular young lady, and a dinner was held in her honor Tuesday evening by the Business Girls Guild of Grace Church.

Dorothy Rankin of Oakland hostessed an affair with Lux College mates of Miss Hannah as guests. Another similar shower was held in the Irvington St. home of Mrs. George Winton, with her daughter, Mrs. Michael Hober, and Mrs. Robert Tomei of San Bruno joint party-givers.

The Church of the Wayfarer in Carmel will be the setting for the Sunday nuptials of Pearl Berge and Bob Kieffer. The bride will don a navy suit for the ceremony, with white accessories. Standing up for the couple will be the Charles Petersons of S.F. Following a brief honeymoon in the south the couple will return to occupy a studio apartment at 21 Park Plaza Drive in Westlake.

Pearl is the daughter of Mrs. Clara Berge of Memidji, Minnesota, and the benedict is the son of the Joseph Kieffers of San Francisco.

GARDEN CLUB GATHERING:

A large group attended the Tuesday night meet of the Daly City Garden Club which was held in the Hall of Flowers—Walt and Kay Nessier's glassed in solarium room, which adioins their Bungalow Nursery on Hillside Blvd. Surrounded by the luxuriant displays of fern, pelargoniums, rhodendron and hanging fuchsias, the general business was conducted by President Aimee Bunkley. New members and guests were welcomed by membership chairman, Mrs. Howard Miguel. Genial Mr. Walt Nessier held a question and answer forum on Fuchsias, and Mr. G. Hopkins, an authority on roses, followed suit, answering problems tendered on roses and their care.

Following adjournment coffee and cake were served from an im-

LEGION AUXILIARY SPONSORS LUNCHEON

Two honored guests were feted at the annual Girl State luncheon of the 26th District of the American Legion auxiliary held Saturday at the Lanai in San Mateo.

Among those attending from Daly City were Mrs. Vivian Pahlka, girl state chairman of the Daly City unit; Mrs. Leslie Hansen, 26th district president; and Mrs. Ann Welch, Mrs. Naomi Murphy, Mrs. Irma Magnuson and Mrs. Olga Bordson.

provised buffet and each guest was given a miniature potted plant for their garden. With this permanent location for meeting, the program chairman, Mrs. C. Yahn, will be able to plan some very interesting and informative meetings in the future.

SHOWER:

A centerpiece of pink roses, with tiny baby roses strewn on a pale pink satin ribbon scalloping the outer rim of the table, was the attractive setting for a shower honoring Mrs. Robert Anderson, last week. Given at the home of Mrs. Henry Adami, 443 Hillside Blvd., it was co-hostessed by Mrs. J. Ausano, Mrs. R. Wakehouse and Mrs. K. Attebury. Some twelve guests were present to honor the former clerk of Woodrow Wilson School, who is retiring in favor of family life. Gifts were presented, in a doll carriage piled high with lovely gifts.

Honorees at an early June after-school party were Mrs. Mary Hale and Mrs. R. Anderson, both of whom will leave Woodrow Wilson soon. Mrs. William Bradshaw and Mrs. Mendel Plansky made the attractive favors and arranged the decor. Other guests included all the teachers, Mrs. J. Trumske and Mrs. M. Caruthers, PTA prexy, in this pleasant farewell gesture.

FEMININE FANCY:

Marie Rockey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Rockey, 8 Gambetta St., was chosen for the role of "Cotillion Princess" at the recent Avon Show held at the Clift Hotel. Marking the occasion of their 65th Birthday, this popular concern put on a delightful display show and reception that was a tremendous success. Miss Rockey's gown, a beautiful nylonette over pink satin had a shirred bodice, and featured the true draped "Cotillion" skirt. She was presented with three other girls, each one portraying individual scents for which the firm is famous.

VISITING:

Miss Cora Louise Perkins, of Beaumont, Texas, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Howard Miguel, at Mrs. Miguel's Edgewood Terrace residence.

ROMANTIC OUTPOST:

Friends are saying their goodbyes to the Wayne Bertholds, popular young Broadmoor couple, who will leave soon for duty in Tangiers, Morocco. Wayne, who is a radio technician, has been with San Francisco's KJBS for some time, and will assist in the "Voice of America" broadcasts, which beam from this desert city of romance and intrigue. Accompanying the pair, will be Mrs. Leona Denton, mother of Mrs. Berthold. . . . Good Luck!

O.L.P.H. Mothers Install Officers

by Mrs. V. M. Cubic

The Mothers' Club of Our Lady of Perpetual Help School was organized several years ago for the sole purpose of working with the teachers for the good of the children, to assist financially in what ever is necessary for the benefit of the school and to promote friendship among its members.

Mrs. Mary Calegari, out-going president, in giving her year's report at the regular meeting held June 6, showed that these objects had ben achieved.

The Club's worthwhile accomplishments were the purchase of school books, scholarships, the employment of an athletic coach, and a substantial contribution to the Pastor to be used for educational purposes as he sees fit.

Many delightful social events also filled the calendar—whists, Christmas bazaar, Mother's Communion breakfasts, several parties for the children and a very new and interesting idea was carried out for the luncheon program, "April in Paris" which was very beautifully done.

After the report, Mrs. Calegari turned the meeting over to Mrs. Theresa Sullivan who installed the new officers during the lovely candle light ceremony. She was assisted by Mrs. Valetta Ennis as Marshal.

Following are the newly installed ofifcers:

Mrs. Jean Denning, president; Mrs. Ruth Cresta, vice-president; Mrs. Elinor McDougal, recording secretary; Mrs. Mary Tieball, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Katherine Ricci, financial secretary; Mrs. Dorothy Carrington, treasurer; Mrs. Virginia Stanley, auditor.

The Board of Directors: Mrs. Myrtle Hathaway, Mrs. Eleanor Vinal, Mrs. Edna Bonini, Mrs. Marina Ciabattari, Mrs. Mae Holtz.

Mrs. Jean Denning and Mrs. Mary Calegari, out-going president, were then presented with beautiful corsages of carnations.

In assuming office Mrs. Denning appointed the following:

Mrs. Esther Nolan, historian; Mrs. Mary Calegari, parliamentarian; Mrs. Janet Fellman, whist chairman; Mrs. Marian Balestreri, hospitality; Mrs. Edna Cubic, publicity, Mrs. Virginia Stanley, Christmas cards; Mrs. May Jordan, sewing chairman.

Father William Stewart addressed the members with a brief message.

Serving refreshments were Sue Schroeder and Mrs. Valeta Ennis, assisted by the fifth and seventh grade mothers. The tables were done, most effectively, in the graduating class colors of blue and gold by Mrs. Marion Balestrari, assisted by Mrs. Cora Rogers, Mrs. Adora Delsino and Mrs. Anna Sutter. The flowers were given by Mrs. Jinnie Johnson.

Mrs. Mary Calegari was given a beautiful Missal as a token of appreciation for her fine work during the past year as the Club's president.

Wage stabilization regulations set heavy penalties for any person giving or receiving illegal pay increases.

FOE Convention Slated June 22

Members of the California State Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, will strengthen their stand against the influx of subversive and communistic elements in California when they convene in Santa Barbara on June 22nd, 23rd and 24th for their 48th annual state convention, according to Eddie E. Johnston of Glendale, Eagle state president.

"Resolutions advocating the American way of life with its heritage of individual freedom and respect for the rights and dignity of all men will be presented at the conclave to offset the continual vicious campaigns by subversive elements to attempt to undermine the faith of the American people in their form of government," Johnston declared.

"Delegates from 194 California Eagle lodges, representing a membership of over 100,000, will pledge themselves to renew their fight against Communism by local activity in encouraging and participating in patriotic observances in their communities and working for the unity of our people and the strengthening of democracy when they meet in session in Santa Barbara this month," Johnston concluded.

The three day convention will attract 1,200 delegates from California Eagle Aeries and at the same time women's auxiliary units of the organization will hold their state convention. The three day conclave will include drum corps, drill team and ritualistic competitions.

The U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics has made surveys of occupational wage rates paid in major communities.

Coast Air Derby Slated For Sunday

After several postponements because of low air ceiling, the Coastside Air Derby will be held Sunday, June 17, weather permitting.

An unlimited ceiling is preferred for these stunts and there should be a minimum of one mile.

The entire CAP is now working on the Army 14 to put in shape to fly.

Last night was devoted to covering the wings with new fabric.

Two new units have been activated. Santa Cruz Skypark flight No. 58 attached to Salinas Valley Group 10 and Fair Oaks Squadron No. 94.

Sunnyvale Flight No. 8 has been redesignated as Sunnyvale Signal Flight No. 8, by order of Colonel Freeman, of California Wing CAP.

Local Boys Look To Model Air Meet

200 MPH Miniature Jet Planes Among Attract'ns.

Those loud buzzing noises you've been hearing from the direction of th neighborhood playground every afternoon lately aren't king-size hornets on the loose, but only model plane builders tuning up their tiny engine-powered racers.

Every boy in Northern California under 21 who has a model plane that flies is busy grooming for the 1951 Plymouth Dealers Model Plane Meet, scheduled for July 14th and 15th. Their goals are valuable trophies and one of the ten all-expense-paid trips to Detroit, and a chance to compete in Plymouth's International Model Plane Meet.

Sponsored by the Northern California Plymouth Dealers, the big local meet will be held on two days: Saturday, July 14th at the Tracy Municipal Airport, where free flight planes will compete—and on the following day, Sunday, July 15th at Seals Stadium in San Francisco. On the latter day, all kinds of control line events are scheduled, including speed tests and sensational combat flying in which the owner of one speeding model plane tries to disable another plane in mid-air.

Jet planes, capable of speeds up to 200 miles an hour, and patterned after the famous German "buzz bombs" of World War II will be among the many attractions at the Seals Stadium affair, July 15th.

A delegation of model plane builders, headed by Darrell Larks of San Francisco, one of last year's local and national winners, called on Major General William E. Hall, commanding the Fourth Air Force, Hamilton Field recently, and showed the tiny jets to a highly interested audience.

Entry blanks may be obtained from the following Plymouth dealers:

Carl Haas Motors, 7070 Mission.
Timossi Motors, 6888 Mission.
James E. Donohue, 6232 Mission.

DEAR PARENTS

By Jane Keith

Have just come down with a severe case of fever—spring fever—and all of Mr. Bayer's aspirin are to no avail. Some kind friend suggested that "Hadacol" might help, another—a day in the sunshine, but the wisest one of all merely sighed out of her own experience, "Ah, for some money!"

Every time a vision of some cosy lakefront cottage floats before my minds eye the butcher wipes it out or the grocer or etc., etc. . . . Men in Washington give out with lengthy discussions of the lowered cost of living, the O.P.S., the balance of economic power, but in spite of all this verbiage my grocery and other bills are steadily climbing and climbing!

Food seems to be the worst, but maybe that is because after yo buy THAT your buying worries are over—you are broke, lady, and that ten cents worth of "mad money" in your purse is hardly enough to make you look at the bargains in the "Shopping News." . . . By food, I man cereals rather than caviar, and "plate" beef—not porterhouse steaks. . .

No Answer

Money in itself doesn't seem to be the answer, because these days even if you have it you DON'T have it for long. Around tax time I always feel like giving out with the football cheer that goes "Give 'em the axe, the axe, the axe," but the government thought about it first—so we get it instead!

I hear the "bookies" are falling into the government pattern, too. they used to say "Two will get you ten," but now it's "Ten will get you two." . . . If times have changed, so has the mighty dollar! People who used to gamble on "making ends meet" are now taking odds on the ends "getting acquainted at all." . . .

"C'est la vie, c'est la guerre" my nephew writes me from Korea. . . . "in fact, c'est la Hell. We are now having a plague of brilliant green and very small frogs with red spots on their bellies—they are over and into everything. We are also taking hundreds of prisoners—all very meek and mild after six days on the road without food—"

As my nephew said "it's life, it's war" and looking at the picture from his angle my bellyaches seem pretty unimportant and artificial. . . Just the same, I shall revel a little longer in my "spring fever" mood of complaining about conditions in general and particular — a "democratic" kind of complaining that throughout America's history has made America great.

Also, I shall stay home—I guess—my groceries have just been delivered, complete with bill!

THE MIDDLE DEPTHS

by Ridgely Cummings

If Maxim Gorky were still alive, I'd tell him to move over Bub.

For Gorky was an expert on human misery in the bottom brackets, as he proved by writing "The Lower Depths." But I seem to have been elected, unwillingly, as the raconteur of misery and misfortune among the middle class.

Last week I heard enough sad stories from people on the verge of slipping down in the social scale to last me until income tax payments are due.

Three days, three different stories, each one worse than the last.

High Cost

The first was an editor's dinner, where I went hoping to sell these columns to some more papers. I knew from experience that publishing is a hazardous business but now from the horse's mouth I heard saturnine complaints about the cost of paper, the high wages of printers, the senseless demands of advertisers and the foolishness of writers who try to compete with established syndicates.

A sobering experience but I was undaunted.

Next day I went to a social function where the rich mingled with the learned and sat next to a fellow who had sold his blood in order to pay for his lunch. I've already written about that in a column called "Blood Money."

The third day took the cake, as we poets say. Here are the fascinating details.

Some weeks ago at an art opening a modishly dressed woman of about forty told me about her beautiful home in Beverly Hills and invited me up. I accepted vaguely and provisionally, for it was one of those inaccessible places perched on the top of a mountain, reached only by auto.

Prissy Invites

Not having a car, I had practically forgotten all about it until on the day in question business took me to the shopping district of Beverly Hills. There I met the lady, whom we had better name. We can call her Priscilla, Prissy for short.

Prissy was convinced that the story of her life would make a captivating book. She needed only a collaborator, some who "knew the mechanics of writing" as she put it.

Would I be kind enough to come up to her place and listen to her outline the story so I could advise her if she should go forward?

But of course. I would be delighted. What else could one say? And besides I was curious about the house.

We took a taxi to get there, which surprised me for I had thought Prissy had a car. She explained it was no trouble to walk downhill to town and the cab going up cost only 1.85.

I nodded, a mere bagatelle.

Big Impressions

The house was everything she had claimed it to be. There was a sun deck over the double garage. In back was a barbecue pit, garden furniture and a pleasant hillside yard. Inside there was an enormous living room, dining room, kitchen and maid's room and bath downstairs; and four bedrooms with palatial baths upstairs.

I was impressed.

Prissy made coffee and we sat in the living room. She began giving me the story line for her book, which was of course her autobiography. Her life had been a series of tragedies. Soon she broke into tears.

Consideration for Prissy's confidence does not permit me to go into details but briefly, she was in a bad way. Her home was mortgaged and she was about to lose it. Her jewelry was in hock. Her hopes for the future were pinned upon an artistic enterprise which, it seemed to me, had from a realistic viewpoint no possibility of commercial success.

In addition, and this handicapped her in her enterprise, she was suffering from a weak heart, stomach ulcers and colitis.

Problem Clinic

I spent the afternoon listening to her problems and trying to figure out some way in which she might surmount her difficulties.

If I had been a millionaire it would have been easy. All she needed was money. She hoped to earn it through art. I shook my head sympathetically. Art, I told her, is for the rich or the penniless but not for someone with interest payments coming due and back taxes to meet.

She disagreed but had difficulty finding exceptions to prove me wrong.

In the end I had a brainstorm and suggested that she advertise honeymoon suites for rent. Her place was isolated and elaborate enough for that purpose.

But I doubt that she will do it. There were the neighbors to think of. Middle classe pride dies hard.

ON THE OTHER HAND...

By Bob Quinlan

The big race to sign, seal and deliver Ed Cereghino enters the homestretch this weekend with the Pittsburg Pirates and the Chicago White Sox neck and neck.

Cereghino, a big right handed hurler with a $100,000 price tag, graduates from Jefferson High tonight, and, according to a baseball law, is eligible to sign a professional contract.

Branch Rickey and Frank Lane, general managers of the Pittsburg Pirates and the Chicago White Sox, respectively, are flying to San Francisco Friday to watch the Jeff ace hurl.

Cereghino will pitch for Pomona Tile in a Funston Night League game.

Normally the Pirates would have little trouble in outbidding the White Sox which heretofore peddled outstanding players instead of purchasing them. All Rickey would have to do is have his boss Bing Crosby make a few new records, and then he could lay out any fabulous bonus on the line.

But not now. The White Sox are leading the American Legue, and are packing them in at the gate, both at home and on the road. They can afford high priced players now.

In bidding, however, the Cleveland Indians, the Philadelphia Phillies and the two Boston clubs are not out of the running. The Indians have just signed a "bonus baby" at an estimated price of well over 100 grand, and they may still be in the mood. A few more television appearances by part-owner Bob Hope could do the trick.

Bob Carpenter, owner of the Phills, also must be reckoned with. He has been successful with bonus players Robin Roberts and Curt Simmons, and may be willing to stretch his luck. The Phillies have just signed a prep shortstop out of Detroit for more than $80,000.

Owner Tom Yawkey of the Boston Red Sox is another who is willing to pay out large sums for players the Bosox can use. And what could be used more than good pitchers.

Boston Braves' prexy John Quinn has demonstrated open pocket book tactics in the past. Bonus rookie Johnny Antonelli was ready to make the grade this year before Uncle Sam grabbed him, and Sam Jethroe came to the Braves for a terrific price.

Although these are the big five in the bidding for Cereghino, every major league team will be represented at Friday night's semi-pro contest. Cereghino's performance in that game by far will not be the deciding factor in the amount of his bonus check. Scouts have been turning in reports on him for the past three years.

The biggest of the many feathers in Cereghino's cap was the story book ending of his brilliant high school career in the recent Northern California all-star prep game.

The big, blond Jeff senior set down the best San Francisco had to offer with one unearned run in nine innings. Displaying excellent control, he fanned 15 while passing three. He was almost always ahead of the batter. Nine hits were picked up off Cereghino, but six of them were on the scratchy side.

To top the evening off, he whalloped a tremendous 380 foot home run entirely out of the ball park in mamouth Seals Stadium. The ball was still going when it cleared the fence.

Cereghino put on one of the greatest one-man displays ever to be staged in Seals Stadium, and that includes the professionals who have played there. There was no doubt in the minds of any who witnessed the game that Cereghino would be the unanimous choice as the contest's outstanding player. For this he was rewarded with an all-expense trip to see the first two games of the 1951 World Series this fall.

He follows an array of fine ball players who won the award in previous years: Vic Picetti, Mission first baseman; Bob DiPietro, Lincoln of SF outfielder; Walt Pocekay, Richmond outfielder; Richie Baptista, Galileo pitcher; Gus Triandos, Mission catchers; Don Ferrarese, Acalanes pitcher, Miller Fore, Lodi catcher; Karl Olsen, Tamalpais outfielder; Bill Offield, Burlingame pitcher; and John McNamara, Christian Brothers, Sacramento, catcher.

But in our books, Cereghino is the greatest of all.

NEWS FROM THE SCHOOLS

CROCKER SCHOOL

Room 4

The sixth grade enjoyed two interesting lessons with the art supervisor, Mrs. Kagan, recently. They learned the principals of beginning perspective. The terms "eye level" and "vanishing point" have been added to their vocabularies. Some interesting pictures resulted from this worthwhile instruction by the art supervisor.

Room 5

Sandra Fortier brought a frog to school.

We have learned how to find the perimeter and the average in arithmetic.

COLMA SCHOOL

Seventh grade pupils in room seven are studying the interest formula, discounts, commission, profit and loss. In social studies, they have just finished Italy, a land where past and present meet.

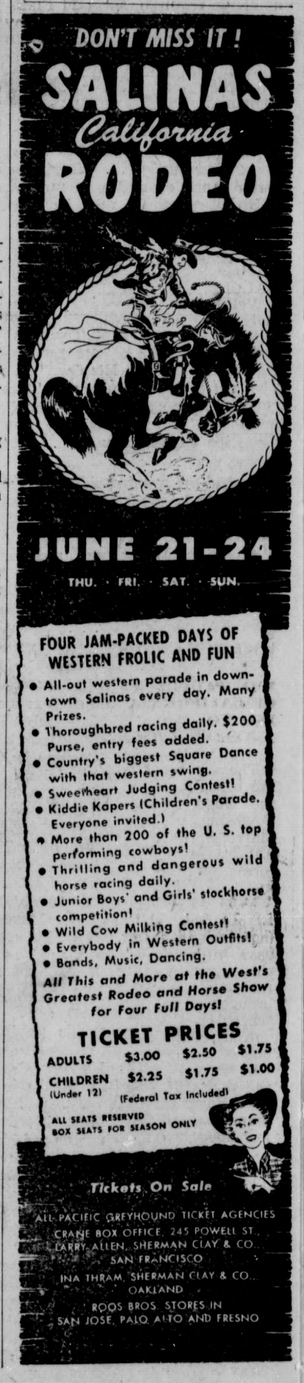
David Kruse, eighth pupil of room three, has not been absent or tardy all year. Pupils of this room have made miniature houses, as well as books that can be used as photograph albums.

The pupils in room two, seventh grade, are still very much interested in frogs and snakes. The area near the school offers much chance for first-hand observation. Freehand pictures of scenes outside the school room have been drawn. Louis Ferpo had a horse about half drawn when the horse ran away.

The students of the seventh grade in room six are studying about the diseases spread by insects. They have learned that malaria was caused by the female anopheles mosquito, yellow fever was spread by the female tiger mosquito, and bubonic plague was transmitted by fleas. They have also read articles and seen stripfilms about the scientists who discovered the causes of these diseases.

DANA POINT

Dana Point, located in Orange County, is reported by the National Automobile Club to have been named after Richard Henry Dana who described this location in his book, Two Years Before The Mast.



Surveys of consumer expenditures are now being conducted in 91 cities by the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

A Friend In Need Is A Friend Indeed

Mrs. R. E. Damon and Mrs. E. R. Golladay were up to their ears in a shining array of pots and pans. Said Mrs. Damon, "That should cook many a Broadmoor-Colma Girl Scout dinner."

"If mixing bowls were only as durable," mused Mrs. Golladay.

"How about wooden ones?"

"I'm afraid they cost more than you'd want to pay," advised the storekeeper.

"I'll buy what you want," cheerfully volunteered Mr. Peter Markovich. And he did, the largest in the store!

And orchid to you, Mr. Markovich, from the Girl Scouts.

The co-leaders of the troops, Mrs. Benidetti, No. 10, Mrs. Brugger, No. 13, Mrs. Clayton, No. 23, presented wings to the following girls who had been Brownies for a year or more:

Troop 13: Lynn Chiapella, Sharon Cook, Kathleen Macklin, Susan Damon, Arleen Hansen, and Marilyn Marshall.

These same girls, and Carol and Donna Brown, then came forward by twos from the horseshoe formation onto the stage to say a Girl Scout Law and receive their pins, which were presented by the leaders of their respective troop, Mrs. Gianni, Mrs. Damon and Mrs. Ladd. The girls outlined the trefoil with flowers, repeated the promise, and sang "Where'er You Make A Promise."

The new intermediate Scouts and their families then enjoyed refreshments.

"WHAT OF THE CHURCH'S SENSE OF MISSION"

By

Rev. John A. Glasse

Pastor

COMMUNITY PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Down through the centuries the Church has had a "sense of mission," based largely on three factors: first, Christ's own sense of mission, set forth in such scriptures as "the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which is lost." A second factor has been the command of Christ "go ye into all the world and disciple the nations, teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have told you." A third factor has been the inner compulsion of every generation to share with others the blessings of Christ and the Church, which spirit has been the compelling force in worldwide missions.

This sense of mission has expressed itself in diverse ways since the early disciples "went everywhere preaching the gospel,' and since the great westward trek began with the answering of the call "come over into Macedonia and help us." Indeed it may be profitable if unpleasing mental exercise for us to consider what might be our lot today if the gospel had gone eastward instead of coming westward into Macedonia, then westward with the Pilgrim fathers, and still westward to these far western shores. It might have meant that today the untold millions of the Orient would be the enlightened Christian world, sending missionaries eastward to our shores to lead us out of pagan darkness into the marvelous light of the glorious gospel of the love of God.

Such meditation might cause many of our citizens to appreciate more highly the contribution which the Church has made to our "American way of life;" and certainly should cause many nominal Christians to become more active disciples, with a true appreciation of the goodness of God and a desire to have others share in his blessings. The Church reflects this apostolic sense of mission in its official pronouncements; but many in the rank and file are not in step with vital personal discipleship, and therefore do not know the joys and satisfactions of a shared Christian experience.

Leaders in all walks of life are saying that what America and the world need today is the practical application of the principles of Jesus Christ to all of life's relationships, and we agree. The professed followers of Christ are the ones who must lead in the application of these principles; therefore for the individual Christian to rediscover and to manifest that centuries old "sense of mission" becames a patriotic service as well as primarily a Christian's privilege and responsibility.

Vacation Church School To Be Held

Grace Presbyterian Church, at Winchester and Crocker Streets, plans to conduct a D.V.B.S. beginning June 25 and continuing until July 6.

This year, the 50th birthday of Vacation Church Schools across the country will be celebrated everywhere. The theme is "The Church." Vacation Church School boys and girls will gain new understanding as to the importance of the church in their lives.

Mrs. William Harberts will be assisted by an able staff of teachers. Enrollment cards will be available next Sunday.

Sunday, Fathers' Day, will be observed at the Grace Church. In connection with the morning service, the Sacrament of Baptism will be administered by the pastor, the Rev. William Harberts. Parents are requested to contact the pastor.

LOCAL GIRLS TO TAKE CRUISE TO CATALINA

Dolores Koff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Koff of 591 Hillside Boulevard, leaves Saturday morning with Barbara Bunner for a nine day cruise to Catalina Island.

Miss Koff, popular Daly City girl, is a June graduate of Jefferson High School.

Beat Inflation... Raise Your Own Fowl, Vegetables

JUNE 14. (CNS)—Housewives may not be able to beat the high cost of beef, veal and lamb, but they can strike a blow at inflation by planting an economy garden and keeping a few chickens when space is available.

Agricultural authorities said today that home production will leave more food in markets available to those who are unable to plant vegetables or raise chickens.

The housewife who is able for several months to supply her table with fresh vegetables from her own garden, and who is able to rely on a small flock of chickens for the weekly egg supply and an occasional fryer or roaster, will find the strain on the family budget considerably eased, the department said.

Poultry prices have moved higher again, principally because high cost of other meats has forced consumers to turn to the cheaper chicken.

Price ceilings on beef have aided the California consumer little, the experts point out. Steaks and chops were selling at about 95 cents per pound prior to price regulation. When the federal government raised ceilings to $1.08 and $1.13 per pound, California retailers promptly moved their prices to the higher levels.

Only by lessening the demand for meat can consumers cut prices and the best method, say the experts, is to plant a garden and raise a few chickens.

Awards Presented At Court of Honor

Awards were presented to the Boy Scouts of the Lake Merced District last Friday at the semi-annual Court of Honor at Commodore Sloat School.

Dick Hopman, senior patrol leader for Troop 40, received awards for civics, first aid and scholarship which elevates him to the rank of Star Scout. He also received a special citation for conduct becoming a scout in going to the rescue of two children in a runaway car last fall.

Plans were completed also for boys planning to attend camp this summer at Royaneh.

The first automobile appeared on the streets of Detroit 55 years ago—March 6, 1896.

Church School Opens June 18

Vacation church school will be in session at the Lutheran Church of Our Savior, Garfield and Junipero Serra, from June 18 to 29, 9 to 12 daily.

The theme for this year is "The Lord's Prayer," and registrations are being accepted at the church office children 4 years and older. For further particulars phone JU. 4-8501 or JU. 4-0293.

Sunday school and bible classes are at 9:45 a.m. and divine worship service is 11 a.m. every Sunday morning. The Rev. Robert G. Konzelman, B.D., extends a warm and cordial invitation for people of Daly City to worship at The Luthern Church of Our Savior.

Daly City Girl Wins Tennis Crown

Daly City's Barbara Stein won the Northern California Tennis Association's singles title in the 18-year-old division last Saturday at Modesto.

She defeated Stephanie Huff of Stockton 6-4, 7-5 and 6-4.

Miss Stein, who lives at 292 Hillcrest Drive, received a gold tennis ball trophy for winning the title.

Sheridan P. T. A. Announces Theme

At the executive board meeting of the Sheridan PTA, held on June 6, the new program chairman, Mrs. Harry H. Hastie, announced the theme for 1951-1952.

It will be "Together We Learn." The theme was submitted by a committee consisting of Mrs. Joseph F. Harrop, Miss Esther Bahls, Mrs. Louis Palmini and Mrs. J. F. Ballati.

The Ways and Means committee is planning a bazaar in the fall. During the summer the ladies of the Sheridian PTA will get together and sew.

Waters of the Sacramento, McCloud and Pitt Rivers, impounded behind Shasta Dam, form 35-mile long Lake Shasta.

Stripes Stretch Your Wardrobe

By NANCY COOK—ANS

Designer Mary Allert displays new stripe designs to go with solids in "Companion Colors." Fabric is "Mignonne" chambray—dyed-in-the-yarn, so home sewers can now mix and match BEFORE they sew, getting perfect harmony and contrast in colors.

One way to build up your wardrobe—and save money too—is to combine a stripe blouse with a solid skirt, or vice versa; it doubles up so happily with other blouses and skirts. And the season's new stripe designs are more exciting than ever, both in color and variety. If you're cautious of too bold stripes, there are finer stripe combinations to pair off with a solid color; but the big news is that you can now be sure your colors match exactly.

"Instead of dying material after it's woven," said Mary Allert, stylist for Avondale Mills, as she showed us some of her newest designs for their chambrays in "Companion Colors", "the combed, mercerized, 'Mignonne' chambray is dyed-in-the-yarn so the stay-fast colors are woven in. Thus solid shades and stripe designs are made from the same yarn, and colors are sure to match."

Miss Allert feels that stripes are popular because they do so much for you. Vertical, or diagonally-slanted stripes from the center front, have a slimming effect on the figure . . . used horizontally they appear to take inches off your height. A stripe insert set in a deep V on the bodice accents shoulders, makes waists look tinier. Vertical stripes make the much-talked-of slim skirt look slimmer.

But stripes need not always be used with interchangeables, reminds Miss Allert. As collars, cuffs, on pockets or other trim, they perk up any outfit and give it a jaunty air. As a lift for your basic dress, fashion a new striped jabot with a matching turban. This will give you a change of costume and a lift for your spirits.

MOVIES, MIKES and TELEVISION TALK

By LYN WILSON—ANS Features

FROM THE HEART of Kentucky in the foothills of the Appalachians two new programs will emanate over CBS this January. John Lair, who has recreated Renfro Valley from the original settlement which bears its name is the writer and home spun proprietor of the weekday "Renfro Valley Country Store" and leader at the "Sunday Morning Gatherings." All activities on the air are genuine. If a possum hunt, a hayride or a Saturday night barn dance is broadcast it's done from a real one. John was one of the pioneers in the field of mountaineer and folk music on radio. Hundreds of thousands of people from the surrounding territory make annual pilgrimages to visit Lair and see his genuine reproduction of southern Americana.

EVE ARDEN

Of CBS Sunday "OUR MISS BROOKS"

resolves for 1951:

—"to not drop any more typewriters on Mr. Conklin's foot.

—to try to learn to croak like MacDugal, the frog, so Mr. Boynton will pay more attention to me.

—to try to get along on my salary. Of course, this means doing without the luxuries like bread, but maybe I can learn.

—and as Eve Arden—to try to continue to bring you the kind of programs you like."

IRENE BEASLEY

Of CBS Weekday "GRAND SLAM"

resolves for 1951:

—"to stop giving taxi drivers the phone number instead of the address to which I expect to be taken.

—to stop singing "La Vie En Rose" as I walk down the street and wonder why people stare.

—to not look at my watch (instead of the calendar) when I want to know the date.

—to quit telling Dwight he's 'slo baked for lasting freshness!"

. . . and NBC GROUCHO MARX faces the year 1951 with the following determination:

—"This year I'm going to be a good boy. I'm resolving to give up cigars, blondes, parties, acting, eating and sleeping. In fact, there's only one thing I'm NOT going to give up. And that's lying!"

ICED TEA—RANCH STYLE

On city terrace, ranch patio and all over America it's time for iced tea and hearty outdoor dinners. Invite a few friends over, have them dress summer fashion for a summer-fashioned menu of Ranchburgers (huge, juicy hamburgers with plenty of onion and green pepper mixed in), tossed salad, lemon meringue pie and the beverage that's famous for making good food taste even better—iced tea!

Out West, where the hombres like their tea freshly brewed, they favor Iced Tea Ranch Style.

Individual Sadler earthenware teapots are put at each place setting. Three teaspoons of tea or three teabags—enough for two tall, frost-beaded glasses of the favorite cooler off-er—are put in the teapots. Boiling water is then poured over the tea. Three minutes later, each person pours out the fresh, mildly-stimulating tea into his own ice-filled glass. Wonderful! And, will the men go for tea made this way! Watch those appetites perk up and keyed up, under pressure people relax. National Iced Tea Time, July 13th to the 20th, will honor iced tea, the summertime magic Americans have loved since its discovery in 1904. (ANS)

Brentwood Stores Offer Bargains For 10-Day Affair

(Editor's Note: On this page and the next two pages of this issue will be found advertisements from the Brentwood merchants sponsoring these big bargain events.)

"Carnival Days," Brentwood Shopping Center's gala fun and value event, opens today, and will continue through to June 24.

The affair, sponsored by the Brentwood Merchants Association in cooperation with the Improvement Club and the Associated Realty, will prove a great attraction to both the young and old alike.

Candy, baloons, whistles and other prizes will be given to the kiddies, while gifts and special prices on merchandise will be offered to the public by the merchants.

Free candy, ice cream and baloons will be given away to children Saturday. The gifts will be distributed from the front of the Brentwood Market.

There will be a merry-go-round, pony rides, a ferris wheel, and other thrill-packed rides on hand. In addition to this there will be a live baby elephant with all its antics.

Each merchant, during the 11 day carnival, will have a special day in which he will offer prizes and greatly reduced prices on his merchandise. There will be bargains galore to aid that family budget.

Several new shops will be opened in time for the festival. Adding to the huge shopping center will be a new liquor store, a women's apparel shop, a large drug store, a bakery and an auto supply shop.

The merchants are cooperating 100 per cent in making this one of the greatest carnivals ever held in the North Peninsula. Thousands of visitors from all parts of Northern California are expected to turn out for the fun and values.

There will be acres of parking space for the convenience of the guests.

Brentwood, situated near South San Francisco, is one of the fastest growing communities on the famous El Camino Real.

MONO COUNTY TROUT

Topaz Lake, Twin Lakes at Bridgeport, and the East Walker River in Mono County have all been offering good trout fishing during the past week, reports the National Automobile Club.

a peek at THE STARS

By LYN CONNELY

CBS IS SCRAMBLING to locate a radio sponsor for Red Skelton now that his former air sponsor is moving the comedian to TV next fall . . . Speaking of radio shows about to make their TV debut, auditions are being held now for the title role in "Blondie" . . . Arthur Lake, the screen and radio Dagwood, will carry on in the television field as well . . . Congratulations to Johnny Olsen who is celebrating his 25th year in show business . . . He isn't as old as that would indicate, however, since he was only 14 when he first hit radio.

LAKE

PLATTER CHATTER

COLUMBIA: Doris Day does her usually bright job with two new songs from "The King and I" —"We Kissed In a Shadow" and "Something Wonderful" . . . The breezy "Let Me In" is given a swingy interpretation by Paul Weston and his orch and that new vocal sensation, Champ Butler . . . Weston carries on in fine style on the flip with "How Thoughtful of You" . . . "On Top of Old Smoky" is given a rhymic waxing by Percy Faith, his orchestra and chorus and Burl Ives . . . The new and popular "Syncopated Clock" makes time on the reverse . . . And Frankie Laine has a sensationally good recording in "Jezebel", his best since "Mule Train" . . . "Rose, Rose, I Love You" backs it.

MERCURY: "Butcher Boy" has been revived again and done up in neat fashion by Emil Dewan Quintones . . . Another oldie, "The Lady Is a Tramp" backs it . . . Frances Langford turns in a good disc in "The Moon Was Mellow" with "Red Sails in the Sunset" on the reverse . . . Doris Drew is torchy and terrific in "Somebody Else Is Taking My Place."

CAPITOL: Jerry Lewis, minus Dean Martin, does a couple of silly little dillies that are nice variety . . . "A-Hunting We Will Go" and "Never Been Kissed" . . Partner Dean Martin comes up with a real oldie that should click big, "Who's Sorry Now," with "Beside You" backing it.

BREATHTAKING VIEWS and golden sunshine greet the tourist at Zion National Park in southern Utah—pictured here are the "Towering Walls of Zion" taken from high above the valley floor at Angel's Landing. The west's mountains and desert attract thousands of guests during the winter months. The famous Furnace Creek Inn in the heart of Death Valley at Las Vegas, Nevada, is an excellent example of man's triumph over the elements. It is an oasis nestled against the side of a sere desert mountain—a beautiful spa, replete with spring fed swimming pool and all the luxuries of modern living.

Yachting in the Desert, may seem a little far fetched but here it is being done, at Lake Mead in Nevada. This 110 mile long lake is man-made and just one-half hour drive outside the city of Las Vegas.

FOR A COMPLETE CHANGE of climate and scene, choose one of Grace Line's two types of weekly cruises sailing from New York to the Caribbean and South America. Either a 12-day de luxe cruise in the "Santa Rosa" or "Santa Paula" to Curacao, N.W.I.; La Guaira (Caracas) and Puerto Cabello, Venzuela; and Cartagena, Colombia. Or a 16-18 day Casual Cruise on the air-conditioned cargo - passenger "Santas" to Puerto Cabello and Maracaibo, Venezuela, and Barranquilla, Colombia. Minimum rate $435 . . . no U.S. transportation tax.

EVERYBODY LOVES A BARGAIN and there are bargains aplenty in European trips, not to mention the wonderful bargains to be found in the shops once you get on the other side. Most seasoned travelers do Europe in the winter or spring for there are fewer crowds, lower rates and more accommodations. You are sure to want to cover as much ground as you can, America's traditional two or three-weeks vacation makes it possible to include four or even five European Travel Commission countries in your itinerary.

For example, you might go to Great Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Switzerland. Once in France, it is an easy matter to run down to Monaco or to go over into Germany, Austria or Italy for a quick visit. Or you might like to take in Denmark, Norway and Sweden or choose a cruise via the sunny Mediterranean.

HISTORICAL SPOTS, interesting sights and people you see and meet are only a part of the trip . . . The treasures you bring back give fond memories for years to come. The shops are something to dream about, and it's hard to decide among the gorgeous fabrics, laces and embroideries, exotic perfumes, fine porcelain and crystal and the other wonderful "buys."

So why wait to take advantage of these opportunities. In the Thrift Season—September through April—it costs less to go to Europe than you think.

LIMITS OF STRIPERS TAKEN

Many limits of small striped bass have been taken recently by anglers working along the Feather River in the Sutter County area, according to the National Automobile Club. These fish are running around twelve and thirteen inches.

The Lompoc Valley is one of the world's largest commercial flower and vegetable seed growing areas.

The land use survey of San Francisco in 1949 disclosed 2095 acres devoted to commercial purposes.

NEW MEMBER NAMED TO HANNA CENTER

Archbishop John J. Mitty this week announced the appointment of Oakland Municipal Judge Joseph A. Murphy as chairman of the board of directors of the Hanna Center for Boys.

Judge Murphy succeeds Daniel V. Flanagan of San Francisco, who is moving to Washington, D.C. Archbishop Mitty praised Flanagan's leadership in governing the non-sectarian Sonoma haven for neglected boys during the past 18 months.

San Mateo county members of the Hanna Center board include Lawrence R. McDonnell, Daly City; Andrew P. Welch, San Mateo and Robert Higgins, Burlingame.

WASHDAY SHORTCUT

Laundry Done. She's Off to Her Next Call of Duty.

Hats off to the American homemaker who has found time to answer the call for volunteers in our community. It's a proud day when we join the civilian army and contribute at least a few hours each week to the defense effort as a nurses' aide, or in one of the many other services needing help so urgently.

But how to find those necessary hours, with so many demands on our time at home? One way has come to light recently . . . the "No-Rinse" Surf way. Explanation? Well, the big news is that with this washing shortcut, we no longer have to rinse our clothes, which not only saves all the water and fuel required for rinsing, but the time and energy as well.

After all the counseling of our mothers and grandmothers about careful rinsing, it is difficult for us to realize that such a revolutionary washday change is possible. But this is no overnight development. Rather the result of more than five years of steady striving by the Lever Research Laboratories to perfect a product that will give all the advantages with no rinsing that we get with the ordinary detergent and two or three rinses.

This washing miracle extracts the soil from the fabric, holds it in constant suspension in the wash water, and never permits it to get back into the cloth. White clothes and colors alike come out sweet and clean . . . just as bacteria-free with the no rinse technique as they do with the old-fashioned method. All of which adds up to a saving of some 2½ hours on the week's wash alone—a good start for one of the interesting defense assignments awaiting our enrollment.

A question that immediately occurs to us . . . Isn't a detergent powerful enough to perform such magic harmful to clothes? The answer . . . Rigid tests have proved that "No-Rinse" Surf may be used for finest nylons and lingerie as well as heavily soiled work clothes. Less handling and wringing gives longer life to household linens at a time when conservation is becoming the keynote of our defense economy.

By LYTLE HULL

IF IT WERE NOT so shocking, we would have been amused when we read recently of the letter sent to President Truman asking him to bar American military aid to the Franco regime in Spain. This at a time when our own beloved country is in grave danger and when we must have every ally we can obtain, especially the one which controls the mouth of the Mediterranean, which occupies the only safety zone and logical beachhead for our armies in western Europe, and which has two million trained fighters available.

Our cause for amusement was occasioned by the list of names reportedly signed to this letter: Paul Robeson, Howard Fast, Rockwell Kent and that other outstanding patriot, Harry Bridges. Our cause for embarrassment was the names of the Protestant bishops. The writer is a Protestant and resents the couping of the names of bishops of his faith with those of such men as Harry Bridges.

We have reached a stage in world affairs where prejudices must give way to national safety. A selfish man who would jeopardize the lives and liberty of his fellows because of prejuidce, has no place in the western world today. This writer believes that some of the names signed to the letter are innocent dupes of the Red propaganda which has prevented the fortifying of the Spanish peninsula and has thus created the weakest link in the western defense. But we cannot vouch for some of the other gentlemen. Could it be that their plea to the President is not founded upon prejudice alone? Is there something in Denmark which does not go by the name Chanel No. 5? It seems to us we have heard of some of these great partiots before!

And where have we read of that America first and always organization—The Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee? Ask the attorney general!

If the signatures on this reported letter to the President do not give the show away to the American public—then our cause is hopeless.

TEST BOTH LIGHT BULBS

In some cases the test that reveals the stop light bulb to have burned out also is showing the same fate for the tail light bulb, declares the National Automobile Club. Press the service brake pedal. If no discharge shows on the ammeter, the stop light is out. In such a case make a visual inspection of the tail light. The same trouble may have caused both to burn out.

SOUTHERN DELIGHT

When they sang that song about the south they forgot to mention the district's favorite cake, and incidentally a long time favorite with all dads. This two layer dark chocolate delight is filled with a special nut frosting and topped with chocolate nut icing. No father can help but appreciate a delicious gift like this for his day of days.

FATHERS' DAY SPECIALITY .... HAT CAKE

Whipped up by the bakers at Hilda's Pastries, this cake is shaped like the topper made famous by the straw hat league. It resembles a hat to the extent you will have to watch father to see that he doesn't put it on, instead of eat it. And besides its special appearance, the two layer cake is just as wonderful a taste thrill. Pop will be delighted with this cake on the table.

Tapping the muffler now and again helps to dislodge some of the carbon from its inner sides, which is partially blown out by racing the engine just a little, advises the National Automobile Club.

BUT GET OUT QUICKLY

Starting in low gear is a better practice than starting in second gear when viewed from the standpoint of protecting the clutch, declares the National Automobile Club. But, because it is rather a retarding process when one is in traffic, many motorists prefer to let the clutch take the additional burden of starting in second. One way to get around the dificulty is to practice getting out of low gear quickly. Use it only long enough to get the car under way; but it is far wiser to use it.

KNOW ARM SIGNAL

Know and give arm signals, advises the National Automobile Club. Signals given with the whole arm as prescribed by the Motor Vehicle Code are simply a matter of common courtesy and of common sense.

"I REMEMBER"
BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Mrs. Eugenia Blackburn, Tracy, Calif.: I remember when we washed with a battling stick. We would soak soiled clothes in suds, lay them on a block and beat the dirt out.

From Ina J. Kellogg, Omaha: I remember when the grocer had pound rings of pure maple sugar with a hole in the middle.

From A.B.E., Waynesville, Ohio: I remember when my aunt scrubbed her hardwood kitchen floor with rush, a coarse green weed which grows in wet ground. She made a sort of brush, used sand and homemade lye soap.

From E. E. Meredith, Fairmont, V. Va.: I remember when men's shoes had loops on the back to pull them on.

From C. E. Pleas, Chipley, Fla.: I remember when country folks had open dug wells and many had long "well sweeps," and all used the old oaken bucket.

From Mrs. Mary Stewart, Chicago: I remember when small boys wanted a magic lamp with slides. The lamp was kerosene-filled, the room darkened, a sheet hung on the wall, and the family enjoyed the slide pictures as much as TV today.

From Mrs. Estelle C. Laughlin, Gering, Neb.: I remember when grandma's courage was backed up by such accepted mottos as "mother knows best," pretty is as pretty does, be good and you'll be happy." There were no such terms as "momism" and "psychoneurotic."

(Mail your memories to The Old Timer, Box 340, Frankfort, Ky.)

Conscience Speaks
Lesson for Sunday, June 10

A MAN may have a faulty and erroneous conscience. If he suspects that his moral judgments are not sound, he is bound to obtain competent spiritual guidance and advice so that he may correctly judge what is right and what is wrong. But so long as he is morally certain that he has full ability to distinguish between good and evil he can never lawfully ignore what his conscience dictates. This is true whether or not his conscience is objectively in error. It is always right in the subjective sense.

In simpler terms, this means that a man may do something essentially wrong and yet be morally guiltless because, in his judgment, he was doing something good. The reverse is also true. A man may do something good and yet sin because he thought he was doing wrong.

The difference between the man with a good conscience and the man with a bad conscience lies in the attitude of the mind and soul toward God. The man with a good conscience knows that God's will is supreme in all things and has kept trying to live by this belief. The person with a bad conscience also recognizes the supremacy of God's will, but he has elected to obey his own will instead.

Thus, he brings upon himself a judgment he can never escape except through sorrow and repentance. Genuine reform always means the rebirth of conscience that has become dead through persistent sin, or the strengthening of a conscience that has been weakened by occasional defiance of the moral law.

Retailers Warned - - Must Register Ceiling Prices

Less than 2 per cent of the 15,000 concerns selling services in Northern California have filed their ceiling prices with the Office of Price Stabilization, Homer F. Potter, San Francisco District Director, OPS, revealed today.

The balance must file their pricing data by June 16 or risk penalties, civil enforcement actions, and treble damages as provided by the Defense Production Act of 1950.

The wholesale and retail service trades and the supply industry are covered by Ceiling Price Regulation 34, Potter said.

Under CPR 34, owners and operators of firms selling services such as repairing, cleaning, renting, storing, processing, installing or any other act rendered for a charge at wholesale or retail must file a signed statement of their ceiling prices for each class of customer with the District OPS Office at 870 Market Street, San Francisco, by June 16.

Ceiling Prices for the industry, as defined in the regulation, are the highest flat prices charged by the individual firms during the base period, December 19, 1950, to January 26, 1951, to each class of customer, Potter stated. The ceiling price is the base period rate or pricing method. Any commodity previously furnished as a part of the service must continue to be so furnished, according to the regulation.

Wholesalers and retailers covered by CPR 34 may not increase any price or rate for services above the ceilings to each class of customer, nor may they discontinue price differentials, discounts, allowances or make any additional charges for services that they did not make in the base period, Potter said.

The regulation provides that all firms covered must:

1. Post their ceiling prices in a clearly visible place in the retail establishment by June 16, 1951.

2. Prepare a statement of their ceiling prices for each class of customer, in duplicate, giving name and address of firm, signed by the officer or owner of the establishment. The original is to be mailed to the District OPS Office at 870 Market Street, San Francisco, and the duplicate must be kept on file at the establishment and available for inspection at all times.

3. Prepare for examination by OPS all records regarding their prices, rates or pricing methods.

Salmon anglers on party boats operating out of San Francisco have been having some excellent luck lately, reports the National Automobile Club.

San Francisco's warmest days are only about 11.5 degrees higher in temperature than the coolest days.

S. F. Banks Plan Saturday Closing

Nine major San Francisco banks this week announced they will begin Saturday closing on July 7.

Other local banks indicated they might follow suit. Bank of America officials, however, rejected the plan. The Saturday closing move came after the decision of the San Francisco Clearing House Assn. to go on the five-day week. It left each individual bank the right to follow suit or not.

The banks which will initiate the five-day week next month are: American Trust Company, The Anglo California National Bank, the Bank of California, Bank of Montreal, Canadian Bank, Crocker First National Bank, Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corp., Pacific National Bank and Wells Fargo Bank & Union Trust Co.

"The Incas" Show At. S. F. Academy

"The Incas," a photographic exhibition prepared by the editors of Life Magazine, went on display at the California Academy of Sciences in Golden Gate Park here this week.

The show is made up of photographs by Life's veteran photographer, Frank Scherschel. Captions and running text provide a story sequence of the Inca civilization which vanished 400 years ago. It has previously been exhibited at the New York American Museum of Natural History and the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

The local display will continue until the end of June, Academy officials said.

KEEP SPEED DOWN

It is a truism that it is speed that usually determines the extent of personal injury and property damage in the event of an accident, declares the National Automobile Club. When driving on our streets and highways, keep your speed down. By doing so you will help keep yourself safe.

San Francisco's municipal railway now operates 1128 vehicles of all types.

Sierra Lakes Get Trout By Airplane

More than two and a half million trout will find new homes in California lakes when the Division of Fish and Game takes off this week on its annual aerial fish planting mission.

The fingerlings will be dropped in 579 Sierra lakes between Kings Canyon National Park in Fresno County and the Marble Mountains Primitive Area in Siskiyou County. The three to five-inch brook and rainbow trout are dropped harmlessly from an airplane flying at heights of 250 to 800 feet.

The largest regional planting of 625,000 fish will be supplied by the Division's Tahoe hatchery for dropping in 120 lakes of the Tahoe-Desolation Valley area. "Operation Flying Fish"—the largest aerial planting program in the Nation—will wind up August 2.

Earl Leitritz, State hatchery supervisor, stated that the fingerlings will provide certain sport for thousands of anglers next year—and may be worth taking home this season.

It has been estimated there are 10,027,000 acres of woodlands and grass in California.

WHEN CARS GET AGED

That difference in acceleration when cars have seen considerable service without mechanical attention is owing, according to the National Automobile Club, to a cause that the car owner forgets: the spark plugs. The thousands of miles of functioning under high temperature results in burned electrodes. The gap becomes widened and the plug loses its usefulness.

ALBACORE CATCH FOR 1950

Sport fishermen on public party boats operating out of California ports brought back more than one hundred and fourteen thousand albacore during 1950, reports the National Automobile Club.

ALPINE COUNTY TROUT

Trout anglers have been having some first-rate sport during the past few days along Markleeville Creek in Alpine County, reports the National Automobile Club.

Avila, in San Luis Obispo County, was once famed as a rendezvous for Pacific pirates.

Imports of water into the San Francisco Bay Area during 1948 averaged 198,000 acre feet.

Special Antelope Hunting Season Permits Available

California hunters have until July 25 to get their applications to the Sacramento office of the Division of Fish and Game for one of 550 chances to bag a male antelope during a special fall hunting season just announced by the Fish and Game Commission.

In keeping with its every-other-year antelope hunting party, the Commission set the 1951 season between September 1 and 10 in Modoc and Lassen counties. Permit holders are expected to harvest an estimated 350 to 400 surplus bucks from the herd of approximately 4500 animals. An additional 100 antelopes will be live-trapped and transplanted in suitable areas of Mono County.

Applying on a special form now available at Division offices and license agencies, licensed California hunters who have not received an antelope hunting permit since 1940 will take their chances in a public lottery-type drawing to be held in Sacramento early in August. Successful applicants whose number is among those of blocks of 50 drawn from a wire cage will pay a fee of $7.

As applications are received by the Division, they will be serially numbered. Applications of two individual sportsmen may be submitted in one envelope to better assure a chance of hunting with a friend. Employees of the Division are not eligible for a permit.

Don't Kill A Child During Vacation

The California Highway Patrol today asked motorists to be especially watchful for children now that the long Summer vacation has begun. With the closing of schools youngsters can be expected to be playing almost anywhere, often in unexpected or unsafe places.

Drivers were urged by the Patrol to drive slower than usual on residential streets, near parks and playgrounds, and wherever children are about.

"While child safety is admittedly a parental responsibility, motorists have a very real responsibility also," the Patrol declared. "Children should be taught to play in safe areas only, and never in the street. But regardless of proper instruction, children by their very nature are impulsive and at times thoughtless. Whether they are riding bicycles or playing in the parkway, drivers can never be sure what they will do.

"The only safe and proper thing to do is to slow down when children are near. In an accident involving a child the motorist is often legally blameless. If a driver, by going a little slower could have avoided striking a child who suddenly darted in front of his car, his grief will not be assuaged by the fact that he was legally free of blame."

Three states produce mustard seed on a commercial basis — California, Montana and Washington.

DANA POINT

Dana Point, located in Orange County, is reported by the National Automobile Club to have been named after Richard Henry Dana who described this location in his book, Two Years Before The Mast.
